Approaching

The End

In 1987 we were approaching the end, the end of an era, and the beginning of a new one. Clemson celebrated its ninety-ninth birthday this year and we remembered all of the changes that the original Clemson College went through. We wanted to dedicate this book to all of the achievements that Clemson University has made.

On April 16, 1888, now regarded as Founder's Day, Thomas Green Clemson bestowed $80,000 "to establish an agricultural college which will afford useful information to the farmers and mechanics . . . therefore, it should afford thorough instruction in agriculture and the natural sciences. It should combine, if practicable, physical and intellectual education, and should be a high seminary of learning . . . " how true these words would later ring.

The first students, 446 of them, arrived on July 6, 1893 at the then all-male military academy. This tradition continued until 1955 when the first women were allowed. This was a truly historic year, as we also saw the school change from a military academy to a civilian college. In 1963 Harvey Gantt, the school's first black student was enrolled and "integration with dignity" came to South Carolina.

In 1964 Clemson became a fully accredited university and in the next twenty-plus years would make strides to become one of the South's truly great land-grant universities. By 1987 there were nine academic colleges offering 62 undergraduate and 61 graduate areas of study.

The students were also approaching the end. The seniors were approaching the end of their stay at Clemson and the beginning of the rest of their lives in the real world. The juniors were to be leaving the university as the Centennial Class. The sophomores passed through the halfway mark of their college careers and the freshmen moved on to the better part of their's. Looking back on the first hundred years we could only hope that the next 100 would be equally eventful.

STUDENT LIFE

Bloom Time

In late spring, and early summer before the final exams, students felt the spring fever of summer vacation. The long hours of study were finally over and the days of summer relaxation were getting closer as each day passed. It was a time to laugh, perform crazy stunts, and attend various concerts and events. But mostly, it was just a chance to have a great time and spend moments with that someone special.

It also gave many the opportunity to gain valuable experience by working part-time jobs. The experience helped many to find employment outside the university as soon as their graduation date finally appeared.

Also, others found it beneficial to study and attend classes in the summer to either catch up or obtain an extra step towards their degree. It took dedication to study for classes and obtain the "B" average when everyone else around was having fun.

Ya'll Come Back Now, Ya Hear

At the beginning of the fall semester, the Alumni Center, in cooperation with the Clemson Chamber of Commerce, welcomed the students of Clemson University with a celebration on Main Street. The Welcome Back Festival never ceased to amaze the students as the Chamber and Alumni organization continued to top their previous years' performance. College Avenue, from the Subway II Shoppe at the corner of Highway 93 to Lynch's Drug Store in front of First Federal of South Carolina, was closed by the City of Clemson and University Police Departments so that the area restaurants could sell tickets for samples to students.

The uniqueness of this event was that this event was the only one of its kind within this area. Not only did the students benefit by learning the types of restaurants that are in Clemson, but merchants had the opportunity to advertise their shoppes. It was also a chance for the students to meet the friends of the university.

The students and citizens of the city of Clemson formed a bond of unity and friendship as they welcomed the incoming freshman and transfer students to the "family" away from home. Clemson citizens took an extra step this year as in previous years in order to help the students continue their studies and not only become the future leaders of tomorrow, but to help them succeed in their chosen profession.

Working On The Chain Gang

Through part-time jobs on and off-campus, many Clemson University students gained valuable work experience. Students workers made important contributions to the work place and performed a variety of responsible tasks. Popular places of employment included the post office, library, police department, bookstore, and academic buildings. Local businesses also employed a large number of students. University students worked in restaurants, clothing stores, and grocery stores in downtown Clemson.

Dorisine Frazier, a sophomore political science major from Atlanta, Georgia, was employed at the University Post Office. Her responsibilities included forwarding mail and placing letters and announcements into student post office boxes. Frazier worked twelve hours a week and planned her work schedule around her class schedule in order to have spare time for studying and being with friends. Frazier enjoyed the sense of responsibility she received from working at the post office. "Although my parents give me spending money, I feel a certain satisfaction knowing I'm paying some of my expenses," she said.

Stephanie Harris, a junior accounting major from Ridgeway, S.C., was employed off-campus at Winn-Dixie in downtown Clemson. Harris worked 15-20 hours per week in the bakery/deli section. Her responsibilities included preparing food and attending the counter.

"In many aspects, working off-campus is a disadvantage because I have less versatility with my hours and I have to drive to work," she said. "On the other hand, I get paid more money and I have much more responsibility." Prior to her job at Winn Dixie, Harris had never worked before. "When I first came to college, I decided to help my parents pay for some of my expenses."

"Working at the Book Store allows me the opportunity to meet interesting people each day," stated Pam Frick. Frick, a sophomore secondary education major from Chapin, S.C., was employed University Book Store. Frick worked 23 hours per week at the Information Desk with responsibilities including answering the telephone, helping students locate class materials, and answer questions on ordering special order items concerning Orange Aids.

University Union

The Clemson University Union was a volunteer organization of students working together with the Union's professional staff to provide co-curricular cultural, social and recreational activities for the total campus community. The Union also sponsored a variety of leisure activities for the campus. The Coffeehouse Committee offered musical entertaiment for Edgar's Entertainment Center. Performers such as Carl Rosen, Rick Kelley, Dave Wopat and Brian Huskey have performed folk, rock and bluegrass music at Edgar's. The College Bowl Committee sponsored academic matches, which required participants to correctly answer a series of questions covering a broad spectrum of knowledge. Intercollegiate matches were held throughout the Southeast with competition between regional colleges and universities. In preparation, the College Bowl Committee organized local campus competition to choose a team to represent Clemson. The Cultural Committee hosted the annual Performing Artist Series. Committee members attended showcases to preview and select programs in theater, dance and drama. In the past Dizzy Gillespie and the Charleston Ballet Company have performed at the University. Committee members negotiated contracts with the performers, sent out publicity, and assisted with production. The Films and Video committee selected the films shown in the Union Theater, Edgar's Entertainment Center, the Alumni Video Theater and at special outdoor film festivals. They were also responsible for theater operations, ticket sales and concessions.

The Outdoor Recreation Committee sponsored action-packed excursions such as tubing on the Chattooga River, bicycling on the Blue Ridge Parkway, rafting, skiing, and horseback riding. Public Relations Committee promoted the Union as an organization by publicizing Union Board events such as Welcome Back Week and Organizations Day. The committee also assisted other committees with publicity for their events. Short Course Committee coordinated more than 80 noncredit minicourses each year. Committee members decided which courses to offer, contracted instructors to teach them, and publicized the curriculum. Courses ranged from breadmaking, woodworking, resume writing and ballroom dancing. Special Events Committee programmed events that didn't fall under the jurisdiction of the other committees. Events such as sidewalk chalk artists, hypnotists, giant banana splits and tie-dying have been sponsored by the Special Events Committee. The Travel Committee planned and organized excursions to out-of-town football games, shopping trips to Atlanta and New York, and scenic trips to famous attractions like Biltmore House. The Travel Center provided students with information on national and international travel, made hotel reservations, and sold luggage tags and travel maps. The Travel Center also sponsored shuttles to and from the Greenville-Spartanburg Jetport for University holidays and conducted trips and tours to places like New York City, Fort Lauderdale and the Carribean Islands. Central Dance and Concert Committee brought contemporary musical entertainment to campus. They sponsored performances at Littlejohn Coliseum, outdoor concerts, and concerts in Tillman Auditorium and Edgar's Entertainment Center. In the past, artists such as Kenny Rogers, Dolly Parton, Sting, Bob Hope, REM and Fleetwood Mac have appeared.

Providing Help

Organized by the Clemson Campus Ministers' Associaton, the Crop Walk has raised close to $ 4,000 over the last two years. The most important part was that 25% of the money raised went to the Pickens Christian Outreach Program which is a food bank which serves Pickens County. The other 75 percent of money raised continued to contribute to funds throughout the world.

"The Clemson Walk Against Hunger is a way for students and community members to get involved in the fight against hunger here in Pickens County and across the world," stated Jeff Clayton.

At this past year's event, over 250 participants were involved with the 10K walk which began at the Fort Hill Presbyterian Center and continued throughout the university to Perimeter Road and then back to the center. Miss Clemson University, Wanda Connelly, was there along with "Free Bird" from WANS to greet the walkers and to cheer them onward.

The event continued to draw attention as in past years due to the ambitions of its organizers. "Our chief goal is to reduce hunger in our area as much as possible within reasonable limits."

Kick Off The New Season

Clemson University celebrated First Friday, the beginning of the 1987 football season, with a parade, a pep rally, the crowning of the first "Miss First Friday," and an outdoor rock concert.

The parade, sponsored by Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity and the Central Spirit Committee, honored President Emeritus Walter Cox.

Cox, who retired from the university in April, served as the parade's grand marshall which featured the Tiger Band, Miss Clemson, Wanda Connelly, the university cheerleaders and more than 30 floats and marching units.

The parade route began at Mills Road and proceeded down Highway 93 and ended in front of Sikes Hall. "CAT-ASTROPHE 87" was the theme of the parade, referring to the Western Carolina Catamounts, the University's Saturday football opponents.

After the parade, the Rally Cats, cheerleaders, and Tiger Band held a pep rally in the amphitheater with event organizers crowning Miss First Friday. Each participating organization nominated a contestant to participate in the pageant. The winner was chosen by students casting a penny per vote and proceeds were donated to Helping Hands of Clemson.

Later that evening, the Central Dance and Concert Committee sponsored a free concert in the ampitheater. The concert featured "Sometimes Why" and "Little America," two up-and-coming rock bands.

"Little America" was a rock-and-roll band from Los Angeles, California. They recently released their self-titled debut album on Geffen Records and perform what has been described as heartfelt rock and roll music, without the use of synthesizers. "Sometimes Yeah! That's the Ticket!

What did football, basketball, concerts, steak and shrimp, bicycles, scooters, and cars all have in common at Clemson?

They all had tickets.

Certainly some of these tickets were precious commodities. Students often went to extremes in order to obtain the small rectangular pieces of paper. Blanketed lines of people outside the ticket office reminded passer-bys of the upcoming appearances of REM, Fleetwood Mac, Huey Lewis and the News, and the list goes on. However, the concert tickets weren't the only ones which warrented breaking out the blankets. Zealous football fans got up pretty early in the morning and some stayed up all night outside the library just to get that pass into Death Valley to see Georgia 20, Clemson 21 lit up on the brand-new scoreboard. The other games still attracted the early morning ticket people, especially freshmen who were desperate for a decent seat (or a seat period). The final game of the season against archrival South Carolina drew out the overnighters again who were ready, willing, and able to road-trip to Columbia.

Another type of ticket that showed up every week was the "premium entree" ticket. With this little orange stub students who frequent the dining halls could make a break from the usual menu, meat, by presenting their tickets in the food line. Students had their choice of steak or shrimp.

Unfortunately not all tickets were greeted with so much enthusiasm. Perhaps the most commonly occuring ticket was the dreaded . . . parking ticket. With the crackdown on ticketing this year, it wasn't an uncommon sight to see cars with five or six tickets, students pleading with officers, and even tickets on bicycles and scooters. The only defense was to observe the yellow mark on the tire before the yellow ticket was under the wiper.

Whether good tickets or bad, if students had a dollar for each one that had passed through their hands, Clemson University would be full of millionaires.

Playing the Field

Bowman Field, the expanse of land in front of Tillman Hall, has been the center of the Clemson campus since the beginning. Bowman Field was an integral part of many student's lives as evidenced by the many people enjoying the various recreational activities and the perpetual trails marking the most popular routes to class.

While Clemson was still a military school, Bowman Field was the site for military parades and drills. Keeping with that tradition, ROTC units practiced marching, took helicoptor rides and participated in various ceremonies on Bowman Field. Pershing Rifles practiced their routines and even the Tiger Band Flag Corps used Bowman Field as an opportunity to practice without the entire band.

Until 1916, Bowman Field was the home of Clemson football and baseball. Spectators sat on the ground or in their carriages because only a few portable bleachers were available. Up until a few years ago, fans were allowed to tailgate on Bowman Field on game day. During the week before Homecoming, Bowman Field turned into a giant party, as the fraternities worked day and night on their floats.

Although the Tigers played their games in Memorial Stadium, Bowman Field was still the site of many informal football games. Sometimes only two or three students would go out and toss the ball around, while other times bunches of people would play just for fun or try to get in a little practice before the next intramural game.

It was almost impossible to cross the field without having to worry about being hit by a frisbee. One of the most popular activities, frisbee sometimes involved a few people, but often large groups would gather for a chance to play Ultimate.

Springtime brought the sun and warmer weather and many students braved the threat of a misguided frisbee for a chance to relax and work on their tans. Other students brought their books, hoping the fresh air would inspire them to study. The sprinkler trucks watered the grass, particularly right before or after a rainstorm and students sloshed across the field in the mud.

The site of many activities ranging from sports to military drills to Homecoming floats to sledding in the snow, Bowman Field was a part of every student's life as it has been for the past one hundred years.

Tuned In To Daytime T.V.

Homecoming Week was filled with so many exciting events that it was almost impossible for anyone NOT to be involved in the festivities. The students' zealous efforts paid off by providing the alumni a top-notch welcome home to their alma mater.

The Miss Homecoming Pageant kicked off the week of celebration. Over forty-three girls competed in the categories of interview, sportswear and evening gown for a chance to become Miss Homecoming. Eleven finalists were chosen from the pageant by judges selected by Student Government; then the voting was turned over to the students. Lark Annette Sisson, sponsored by Delta Delta Delta sorority, was crowned Miss Homecoming 1987 at Tigerama.

The most visible contributions to Homecoming were the floats created by the various organizations on campus. The floats were larger, like Kappa Sigma's forty-foot replica of the Empire State Building, and more complex, such as Sigma Nu's first place moving float which included a waterfall. Alpha Tau Omega and Phi Delta Theta took second and third place respectively in the moving float competition.

Chi Psi's "Clemson and the ACC Salute the Olympics" display won their fourth consecutive first place finish in the still display competetion. The Sigma Phi Epsilon float took second place and the Kappa Sigma float was third.

A pep rally raised the fans' spirit Friday night before Tigerama. The theme of Tigerama was "Daytime TV." Sponsors Blue Key and WSBF allowed non-Greek organizations to participate in the skit competition for the first time ever. The University Chorus made a great first endeavor by placing in the six finalists who performed at Tigerama. Pi Kappa Alpha captured first place with their skit, "Bragnet." The Sigma Nu's came in second and Alpha Delta Pi sorority took third.

The excitement didn't end with the skits. One particular fan even found Tigerama the perfect place to propose marriage, having hosts Russ Cassell and Jane Robelot play his and his girlfriend's role over the speakers while he awaited a response. Luckily, it was Yes! The finale was marked by a fireworks display and the traditional Tigerama "oohs" and "aahs" from the fans.

An early 14-7 lead was taken by Virginia, but with two seconds left, David Treadwell kicked a field goal to pull Clemson into a 24-14 half-time lead. During the half-time show, Tiger Band alumnae joined the current Tiger Band in playing "Tiger Rag." The Tigers ended the game 38-21, making their twenty-seventh consecutive victory over Virginia.

The College Bowl Committee sponsored year-round intramural academic competitions. College Bowl was a question and answer game played between two teams made up of four players each. The teams scored points for correctly answering questions asked by a moderator. The team with the most points at the end of the game was the winner.

The committee held timed matches every week in the Student Senate Chambers. Competition was open to faculty, staff and students at the university. College Bowl wasn't only for the "brains" — sororities, fraternities and assorted groups of friends formed teams. At these timed matches, participants answered a series of questions covering a broad spectrum of questions including art, history, science, math, literature and music. Verified by the Reader's Digest Association, the answers to the College Bowl questions were known by only a few people.

College Bowl involved two types of questions — toss-up questions and bonus questions. Toss-up questions were worth ten points and the first person to signal was given the opportunity to answer the question. If the player answered incorrectly, the other team was given a chance to answer. A correct answer gave the team an opportunity to answer a bonus question. Bonus questions were worth a variable amount of points ranging from 20 to 35 based on the complexity of the subject matter. The entire team could discuss the question for ten seconds, whereas a toss-up question could not be discussed among team members.

In the spring, intercollegiate matches were held throughout the Southeast with competition between regional colleges and universities. In 1987, the Clemson University College Bowl Team traveled to the University of Tennessee for the Southeastern Regional Competition.

Miss Magnolia

Miss Magnolia, Tamela McAtee, is a sophomore majoring in Education with an emphasis in Mathematical Science. She was a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority. "I feel that it is an honor," states Miss McAtee, "to have been chosen as a freshman to be a representative of her sorority. It is because of their support that I was able to become Miss Magnolia."

She most admires her parents because of their love and Christian beliefs and Joni Erickerson because of her ability to overcome the obstacles that life has brought upon her.

Miss Derby Day

Ashley McTeer was a junior management major from Columbia, SC. She was sponsored by the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority of which she was a member. Ashley was greatly appreciative of the hard work and constant support given to her by her sorority sisters. With the tremendous help of the Kappas, she raised over $2700 for Helping Hands of Clemson. Ashley was the activities chairman for her sorority and a Kappa Alpha Little Sister. She enjoyed all sports, especially hunting, basketball and football.

Miss Homecoming

Lark Sisson, Miss Homecoming 1987, was a senior marketing major from Mount Pleasant, SC. Lark was nominated by Delta Delta Delta sorority of which she was a member. Lark was also a member of the American Marketing Association, Society for Advancement of Management, and the Student Traffic Review Board as well as an Alpha Tau Omega Little Sister. Looking back on Homecoming, Lark felt like it was all a dream.

Acting Up A Storm

Fall brought a busy season for the Clemson Players. The group kept the dramatic arts at the University alive and booming with the production of two plays. The Three Penny Opera and Living Together stimulated interest throughout the campus and the town of Clemson to the point that extra performances were added to accomodate the crowds.

The Three Penny Opera ran from October sixth to the tenth. Directed by Ray Sawyer, the play was based on The Beggar's Opera by John Gay. The Three Penny Opera was produced for the first time in 1928 in Germany. The point of the play was to call attention to the social injustices and corruptions in European society. The play produced by the Clemson Players was modified slightly and set in Washington, DC in "the recent past, the current present, and the near future." An excellent performance was rendered by the cast and the hours of hard work by the production staff was evident.

The second play of fall semester was Living Together, which ran from November 17-21. Written by the English playwright Alan Ayckbourn and directed by Robin Roberts, this play was lighter and more humorous than the usual Players' production.

The play involved three couples who had gone to the English countryside for a weekend. Life became a turmoil when Norman tried to have an affair with Annie. Although Norman's wife Ruth was aware of what was going on, Annie's fiancee Tom, who was kind of slow, was oblivious to most of the signs. Annie's sister Sarah was a constant source of gossip, while her husband Reg didn't care about much except finding someone to play a game with.

The Clemson Players looked forward to two spring semester productions — Lysistrata and Inherit the Wind. Everyone anticipated that these performances would be of the same high quality as all the other shows by the Clemson Players.

Pursuing Dreams

Robert L. Hall

Many returning adults spend as much time in the library as any other student.

Almost every student finds Calculus a challenging class.

James Norman Pope looks over his notes one last time before the test.

Dr. Zimmerer helps Pete Knowland put the finishing touches on his resume.

Did you ever wonder why the student who sat next to you was as old as your parents or why the person walking down the hallway who you thought was your professor turned out to be another fellow classmate? These adults had one thing in common; they returned to school. Their reasons ranged from fulfilling job requirements to accomplishing self-fullfilling personal goals and ambitions. Diana Pope, an accounting major from Easley who operated her own accounting business, wanted to "earn a degree in order to collect the same salary as a Certified Public Accountant," and expressed her hope of one day having a degree from Clemson.

In many cases the adults had a harder time trying to earn degrees than the younger students. Although they weren't always as active in Clemson's social functions, they had other demands that had to be met like jobs, children, and their husbands or wives. Diana commented that she devotes 50 to 60 hours a week for her business alone. (There are only 168 hours in one week, This left 40 hours for sleep, 16 hours for class time, 20 hours for study, which left only 24 hours for relaxation and time for her family.)

The average student, age 18-22, admired and respected the adults who return to Clemson. "I see their dedication to their classes and in turn this helps me to press onward even in those difficult times," stated an accounting student. "They seem to have every assignment even if problems arose that could keep them from completing them."

The adult students also did not mind answering questions about the interviews that students face after college. They provided current answers on the market salaries for Accountants, Administration positions, and others. One adult student returned because her husband had an illness and she wanted to operate their Certified Accounting Firm in order for him to recover. She stated that her husband had originally taken Law 312 from Ms. Brown in the Law Department and now she had the same privilege to do so.

The students were focused upon dreams and goals they had set and it did not matter what the ages of the students were, they all were striving to accomplish those goals and become a future success.

Serving C.U. With Style

Serving the students, faculty, and the community of Clemson University, the Student Police performed many valuable services such as ticket writing, directing traffic in peak hours, guarding the campus, and working special events such as receptions and programs.

The University Student Police Department was respected by the University Police and the City of Clemson Police because they performed many activities that allowed the regular officers to patrol the campus.

The student police were criticized the most because of their duty to write tickets on the weekends. "The importance of this duty", according to Thea McCrary, "is to insure that if there was a fire at the dormitories, firefighters would be able to get to the fire without waiting for illegally parked vehicles to be moved."

The student police were also responsible for directing traffic during the early morning rush hour before classes began and as employees came to work. The service proved to be invaluable as 3000 cars arrived each day. And during the lunch hour, the students were directing traffic to ensure that all employees made it safely back to their jobs.

During the special events such as football games, concerts, and basketball games, the student police maintained barricades to insure protection against vandals. They also were responsible for assisting the University Police Department with the safety of leading figures such as Strom Thurmond and George Bush.

Another important task performed for the students was the bike registration. This task was extremely helpful in preventing the number of bike thefts on the university campus.

The management of the organization was different from the other organizations in that there were six student superivisors who governed the group. The highest level of rank was a lieutenant who supervised the other students activities, was responsible for billing the various departments for the services and coordination of activities.

The student police required dedication to complete the long seemingly, endless hours of duty. Sometimes, their work assignments had them working at 2:00 am and ending shift at 5:00 am. However, the student police never failed the University in providing honorable and courteous service.

Red, White and CU

On September 17, 1987 the Constitution of the United States celebrated its two hundreth anniversary. The extreme importance of this fact was that the Constitution is the oldest, written document in America. It is the basis of which our country is maintained and serves justice for all individuals in America.

Clemson University, in collaberation with the University of Maryland and Penn State, began in the early summer the celebration activities for the Constitution's anniversary. One of the numerous activities for the celebration was a Constitutional Forum held on July 13, 14, 16, 17 in Daniel Auditorium. Several members of the panel included Archibald Cox, leading authority on constitutional and labor law; Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., Chancellor of the American Academy and Institute of Arts and Letters; Charles "Mac" Mathias, Jr., Senator of Maryland (retired); and Carl T. Rowan, syndicated columnist for the Chicago Sun Times for 19 years and presently for the News America Syndicate. These four gentlemen were the main speakers not only at Clemson University but also at the University of Maryland and Penn State.

Other Discussion Panelists included Kermit Hall, Professor of History at the University of Florida; Stanley Kutler, Professor of History, University of Wisconsin; William Lasser, Assistant Professor of Political Science, Clemson University; John Johnson, Professor of History, Clemson University; Daniel Wueste, Assistant Philosophy of Philosophy, Clemson University; James Hite, Alumni Professor of Agricultural Sciences, Clemson University; and Lyle Denniston, Supreme Court Reporter, The Baltimore Sun.

Johnny L. Wood

Captivating the audience, Mr. Mathias presents an excellent speech.

According to Professor John W. Johnson, 'The true value of the constitution is exhibited daily by men and women freely discussing matter of interest to them without fear of censorship or punishment." The Constitutional Forum was developed "to help people learn about constitutional issues and challenge them to work for positive legal change," stated Johnson. The Constitution was celebrated nationally and the celebration was organized by Chairman Warren Berger. Clemson was in colaberation with the South Carolina Historical Society and the Commission on Humanities.

According to Daniel Wueste, Assistant Professor of Philosophy at Clemson University, the original intent of the forum was to "identify the theory of Constitutional History and interpret it in an understandable manner and logic." "I think it is very important to recognize that the United States Constitution is much more than a document." stated Wueste. "For it comprises the document we have come to call by that name as well as the political morality that underlies the dejure authority of our government."

The Constitution serves as a basis on which dreams can be built and strived to achieve. The Constitution provides the unity that our nation has needed in past wars and struggles and serves as the basis for future endeavors. The History Department of Clemson and all other departments involved with the forum completed a celebration of the constitution and at the same time educated the public and students emphasizing its importance in American History.

The Constitutional Forum consists of many distinguished panelists.

The speakers keep the audience's attention with interesting speeches concerning freedom of speech, freedom of religion, and freedom of the press.

Arthur Schlesinger, Jr. presents an intriguing speech and discussion on the presidency of the United States and its foreign affairs.

Garth Wood

As part of the R.C. Edwards Science and Technology Lecture Series, Dr. Garth Wood, former registrar of adult psychiatry at the Prior Hospital in London, presented the principles involved with "The Myth of Neurosis: A Case of Moral Therapy".

Dr. Wood based many of his principles on the works of Freud. He stated that Freud was responsibile for the focus on the unconscious mind with hidden motives, the importance of childhood with early experiences, the importances of talking things out, and the increased use of intellect vs. action as a problem-solver.

Wood presented a case against psychoanalysis because unhappiness has been medicalized and normal unhappiness, depression, and anxiety is seen as abnormal and a demand for treatment. "Psychiatrists do not know anymore than an average person," stated Wood.

On the case of sex as an obsession, Wood stated that AIDS, venereal disease, and infidelity are a by-products of Freud's strong emphasis on sex. Also, Wood believed that psychoanalysis does not work and is expensive and even does harm to the patient. He stated that therapy should be controlled like medications are by the FDA. He presented an interesting topic in an interesting manner leaving the audience to question his discussion after the speech.

Sydney Barrows

"I believe that prostitution should be legalized in every state," stated Ms. Barrows. "I took a really sleazy business and turned it into a nice, respectable one." Ms. Barrows turned an apartment house into a formidable escort agency for exclusive clientele of dignitaries, corporate executives, politicians, actors, and others of high rank.

Her story is an unusual one in that she took an investment of $700.00 and the aid of a friend and created a successful business. She has no regrets in making her business profitable, contending that "I deserve my good fortune. I didn't do anything bad. A little naughty maybe but not bad."

She continues to visit college campuses and schools explaining her success and promoting her new book, "Mayflower Madam: The Secret Life of Sydney Biddle Barrows." She continued to explain that many people have not understand her reasoning for operating such a "service;" however, she believes she has earned their respect. "I think students can learn that being honest and having a lot of integrity are two of the most important things anybody can do."

As her success continues to grow, she had a movie based upon her book in November. "I think prostitution should be decriminalized ... After all, my motto is, 'If you can give it away, why can't you sell it?'"

Striking Information

Mick Luckhurst, placekicker for the Atlanta Falcons, came to Clemson on November 17, 1987 with a strong message regarding the National Football League players strike. Speaking to a small crowd of about 50 people, Luckhurst's talk focused on the media and how they had "purposely confused the facts in order to mislead the public."

Luckhurst was the Falcon's player representative and he spoke very strongly against the media portraying the strike issue as free agency. According to Luckhurst, the free agency issue was dropped before the first game was missed. The real issue of the strike was revenues and pay television.

Luckhurst stressed that the strike was not really relevant but its consequences were. He concluded, "The media creates and forms an opinion of the public and the public is railroaded into believing something that is not true."

Talk About Terrorism

Sponsored by the Honors College and the Departments of of Philosophy and Religion and Political Science, the 1988 President's Honors Colloquium speaker was Moorhead Kennedy, a former American hostage in Iran. His main lecture was "The Great Satan: The Terrorist View of America" and he gave several other auxiliary lectures about terrorism.

On assignment as acting economic counselor in Iran, Kennedy was taken hostage on November 4, 1979 and was released 444 days later. Currently executive director for International Understanding, Kennedy's main lecture focused on explaining why terrorism occurs. He said that as the United States and other Western nations became involved with the Middle East, it created cultural, political and religious reactions. These reactions usually resulted in violence which was hard for Americans to accept. He felt that the government must realize the difference between myth and reality and gain an understanding of what typical Middle Eastern terrorists are doing and why they are doing it.

Mr. Snow Meister Strikes Again

Category: Obvious Answers
The answer is: Solid precipitation in the form of white or translucent ice crystals of various shapes originating in the upper atmosphere as frozen particles of water vapor.
Question: What is snow?

No, this wasn't on Jeopardy, but it was on Clemson University. As a matter of fact, it completely covered the campus — about twelve inches of it. Actually, it didn't catch any of the weathermen by surprise. Charlie said it would, and boy it did; however, the blizzard of '88 did catch the University slightly off guard. The snow was coming down pretting heavy on that Thursday morning, but the students and professors joined the ranks of the mailmen, performing their duties in rain, sleet or . . . snow. Even though classes were held that morning (despite the fact many students and professors chose to be no-shows), afternoon and Friday classes were canceled. The unpreparedness also surfaced in the slightly less than adequate clean-up. Of course, not many people in South Carolina were prepared for that much snow. If this were Maine, a much better job would have been expected.

It goes without saying that students enjoyed their vacation. Since the storm hit after only one day of classes, there was nothing to study. Most students didn't even have books yet. Without schoolwork to fill their time, students were found outside playing snow football, having snowball fights, building snowmen or sledding. While inside, they were taking naps, washing tons of wet clothes or playing pictionary. During the immobilization, students didn't even have to be concerned about getting out to eat due to a considerate gesture of validating all meal cards through the weekend.

The folks around Clemson might not have fancy snowsuits, outrageously fast snowmobiles or expert shoveling and salting techniques, but they managed to keep busy finding ways to enjoy every inch of the snow.

Contents Is Breakable

*Break*time! This was a seemingly simple phrase, but on the university campus it became the expression to fit many situations. There were good breaks and bad ones. Within a year's time, hopefully the good far outweighed the bad.

The best breaks consisted of the seasonal vacations. Fall break brought for most students the opportunity to go home, to relax and to catch up in classes (a goal which all proclaimed but never actually did). Thanksgiving break produced the expectations of delicious meal after delicious meal and inevitably the addition of a few pounds (all of which were probably worth it). Again the diligent student vowed to finally open those books to see which one goes to which class. Christmas break was always fun. There were no books, nothing to study and no tests. The only concern was making sure that mom and dad bought the Christmas presents before the grades came. The words "Spring Break" on campus were synonymous for the words "Let's go to the beach." It was nothing but sun and fun (no matter how far behind the student was.

Another enjoyable break, but not nearly as fun as the aforementioned, were study breaks. Study breaks involved cookies, napping, talking, television, pizza, talking, cheese sticks, cola, talking, essentially just "vegging out." Unfortunately the dreaded always happened. The student had to return to the scene of the crime, whoops, wrong story, delete, insert "the books."

All breaks, however, were not pleasant. Just when somebody got a hold of the old Calculus tests for just fifteen minutes, not a working copy machine could be found. They were all broken down. This same person, wxhausted from running around campus, returned to the dorm only to have to walk up ten flights of stairs because of broken elevators. It was also common to see cars (especially ones that have sat in the pit for four weeks) with propped up hoods.

Although all of these breaks were inconvenient, the worst was a broken leg or foot. People had to hobble around campus, with its hills and multitude of stairs, balanced on two pieces of wood called crutches.

This article on breaks was an original yet highly unusual attempt to break away from the traditional Student Life feature. Hopefully this was entertaining and amusing. If not, well, those are the breaks!

The Ultimate Challenge

The Campus Placement Office has been in existence since 1955. It was first organized by Greg Hughes, who was the director until 1975. Al Mathiasen took over as second director and is now the current director.

The Placement Office was not only used by Clemson students but also area high school students interested in a particular major's job opportunities. The advice offered to any student with regard to a major was to choose a major which you enjoy and then find a job.

The Placement Office helped many seniors get interviews with prospective employers. To do this, a student must attend one of sixteen placement orientation sessions offered each semester. The office averaged around 1500 seniors this year registered with the office. Of these 1500 students, fifty-eight percent got interviews on campus. Only two percent were still looking for a job after being out of school for eight months.

One big advancement for the Placement Office was that it had been computerized and was one of the most automated placement offices in the country. Students used this program to research potential employers. Students who logged on to the main computer system had access to this system. It was very helpful in showing students potential employers for their particular major. There were approximately 350 companies registered with the Placement Office. Besides the computer programs, the literature and videos were used to aid in writing a resume or developing interviewing skills.

Among the seniors who were waiting to interview, most expressed feelings of apprehension, tension, and anxiousness. All the students felt the Placement Office helped them in their job search and prepared them for their interviews. Their biggest burden, that of setting up the interviews, had been taken care of. In addition, alumni members and pre-interview cocktail parties helped relax the students before their interviews. The students offered praise of the Placement Office and their main advice was to use the Placement Office to your advantage, because it was there for all students.

Meeting The Challenge

Clemson's Army ROTC had another action-packed year. The 200 members of the Fightin' Tiger Battalion participated in a variety of exciting activities. They started the year with Army helicopter flights from Bowman Field to Pickens Bend Range for their annual M-16 weapons qualification. This lab gave each student a chance to experience real Army equipment in real-life situations, while getting an excellent view of the campus from 1000 feet.

The annual Dining-Out proved once again that military life was not restricted to outdoor activities. Cadets and their dates were treated to a fine meal and dancing, while learning more about some of the military's social traditions.

Other high-lights were the rappelling labs each semester and the second semester land navigation lab. Students agreed that these labs built both character and confidence, and taught them things that would benefit them, whether or not they continued in the program. Some students also took advantage of the annual White-Water Rafting and SCUBA diving trips.

ROTC Week included a Tank and Artillery display by the South Carolina Army National Guard. This attracted quite a crowd, including the Clemson Tiger mascot. The US Army Parachute Team, the Golden Knights, put on a pre-game demonstration for the Duke football game. This jump not only gave 72,000 people a real thrill, but marked the first time anyone has ever parachuted into Death Valley.

Soaring to Reach New Heights

Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps began at Clemson in 1946. For the past three years under the leadership of Colonel William Austin, Detachment 770 has performed many service projects and activities for the Air Force, school, and local community. Such activities included Tiger Drill Meet, a state-wide competition for ROTC high school units, Dining-Out, and the Joint Army Air Force Parade. Also during AFROTC Week, there was a POW/MIA exhibit in the loggia, a formal retreat ceremony on Bowman Field, and a F-16 flyover during the half-time of the Homecoming game. Special projects included escorting Helping Hands children to the football games, flights spending afternoons with the kids, and helping them out with their store. Various parties were thrown throughout the year like the great Halloween Bash.

Over the years, physical fitness has proven to be essential for Air Force officers. For instance, a 1.5 mile aerobic run and PFT (sit-ups, pull-ups, broad jump, and 600 yard dash) were given each semester. Also, there were intercorps athletics such as volleyball, ultimate frisbee, football, and racquetball. Others included the Field Day Extravaganza and a Fun-Run, co-sponsored by the College of Nursing and CU Wellness Fitness Program.

Some of the key speakers included David O. Cooke, the Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense under Administration. Also, both Lt. Clebe McCleary and Dr. William Wentworth, a sociology professor at Clemson, spoke on their experiences in Vietnam.

AFROTC's primary organization, Arnold Air Society, was a national, honorary, professional, and service organization. The Major Rudolph Anderson, Jr. Squadron of Arnold Air Society was commanded by Cadet Andy Chamblee, a sophomore majoring in Psychology. The membership enrollment was 54. AAS won the following Area V and VI awards for 1986-1987: the Maryland Cup for the #1 large squadron, Lemay Ohio Award, Samuel E. Anderson Award, A.T. Reid Crimson Glory Award, Ciccoli Joint Operations Award, and the Colonel Hall Freedom Cup Award. Also on the National Level, AAS won the LeMay Ohio Award for outstanding support of the Air Force Association, the parent organization of Arnold Air Society. Their activities included POW/MIA awareness programs, Girl Scout Derby Day, celebrity auction, and blood drive.

AFROTC looked forward to continuing its community involvement, as well as recruiting, training, and commissioning the Air Force leaders of tomorrow.

The Leading Developers

Student Development was responsible for a plethora of activities encompassing different facets of student life outside the confines of the classroom. Under its umbrella came diverse organizations such as professional clubs, fraternities and sororities, student media, sports clubs, honoraries and service groups.

Student Development was broadly classified into two major categories — Programs and Services.

Programs acted as an advisory body to clubs, fraternities and sororities; assisted in the celebration of annual events like Tigerama, Homecoming, Greek Week, First Friday; offered Student Government services, especially in the form of coin operated copiers.

On the other hand, Services was targeted towards a more specific audience, to highlight a few — minority, handicapped, International students, graduate students. It also promoted Alcohol and Drug awareness on campus and implementation of special projects for the minorities.

Student Development envisaged as one of its primary objectives development of programs which hone the leadership skills of a student. This enhanced a students' potential and led to greater all around evolvement as an indidividual. However the ultimate goal of Student Development best expressed by Theresa Pascal Evans was that they strive to provide an environment which helps in the formation of a large cartel of loyal and proud Clemson Alumni. What better testimonial could one ask for?

The Force Behind The Fun

After a long struggle to keep its identity, Coffee House, a committee of the Clemson University Union was back better than ever. Coffee House held its entertainment in Edgar's on various days of the week.

Coffee Houses evolved in the early 1960's and was an "out-of-the-way" place for beatniks who escaped society, sipped herbal tea and listened to mellow music. The roots of Coffee Houses could be traced back to Greenwich Village.

As the years have worn on, Clemson's Coffee House has seen some changes. Its format of musical acts has expanded to include comedy entertainment.

Coffee House kicked off the fall semester with Charlotte's best ... Carl Rosen, making his fifth appearance at Clemson University. As the lights dimmed on the full house, Carl once again produced that high energy Rock 'n' Roll comedy on keyboards. Carl played hits from Billy Joel, Bruce Springsteen, Stevie Nicks, Elton John and many more along with his own original scores.

Rick Kelley gave an outstanding performance with his Motown Rhythm and Blues. Dave Wopat, back by popular demand, kept the year going with his unique blend of keyboards and synthesizers. To make the year complete, Coffee House brought snickers and laughter with the comedy duo Electronic Zoot Suit, and magician Charles M. Greene mesmerized the audience with his magical acts.

The above performers were but only a few of the great quality entertainment Coffee House provided over the year.

Coffee House was and will remain a place where students and faculty could go to escape the pressures of the day and kick back in a relaxed atmosphere of outstanding entertainment.

Pawpulation Celebration

With a new twist added to the traditional Spirit Blitz, a whole week was dedicated solely to the promotion and recognition of the great spirit of dedicated fans backing their Clemson Tigers.

The theme was "Pawpulation Celebration" and in keeping with this, Student Government worked with Central Spirit to provide tiger paw signs for each student to hang in dorm windows.

Three volleyball tournaments and a basketball exhibition were the other sports promoted during the week, rather than only the football game as in previous years.

A pep rally on Thursday fired up the fans with performances by the cheerleaders, Rally Cats and Tiger Band. A special light show also helped fans heighten their spirits.

Generous sponsors played a key role in Spirit Blitz activities. Coca-Cola donated five hundred T-shirts given away at the pep rally and the Athletic Department sought out the sponsors, WFBC and Amoco, who provided 80,000 orange megaphones that were distributed at the game. J.P. Stevens sewed the huge colorful banners decorating the stadium that were designed by Central Spirit members.

At an early start of 6:30 am, Central Spirit began blowing up balloons and making paper tiger paws for the fences on Saturday. They teamed together at half-time with Tiger Band to make the world's largest tiger paw in the middle of the field, whose endzones had been painted orange for the final home game. Fifteen thousand balloons were released afterwards.

Over two hundred people lined up at the end of half-time to greet the returning Tigers in a Spirit Tunnel and lead fans in a cheer with orange and white flash cards.

During the third and fourth quarters, loyal fans had the opportunity to actually take part in the activities down on the field. Taking turns carrying it, fans kept the Tiger Paw Flag circling 'round the stadium, helping lead Clemson to a 45-16 victory over Maryland and the ACC championship.

Spirit Blitz '87 was a fun-filled week of excitement. Plans were already being made for next year's celebration.

(Orange and) White Christmas

Many signs hinted that Christmas was approaching — decorations topped the streetlights in downtown Clemson, candles lighted the windows of Sikes and Tillman Halls and the dining halls served their traditional Christmas Feast.

Students joined in the festivities by putting candles or colored lights in their dorm windows. Some were lucky enough to have Christmas trees and many decorated their doors. Even upcoming final exams couldn't stifle their holiday spirit, as students listened to Christmas music while they studied and took time out to watch their favorite Christmas specials on TV.

Christmas celebrations in the 1980's were quite different from Christmases a hundred years ago. Everyone was given the opportunity to experience an old-fashioned Christmas when Christmases from the past and present were brought together for an evening during "Christmas in Clemson." The Fort Hill Mansion, Hanover House and the President's home were decorated for an open house which was free to the public.

The Fort Hill Mansion, home of John C. Calhoun, was decorated for Christmas for the first time in over twelve years. Candles and greenery adorned the rooms and the dining room table was set with a Christmas feast similar to that which John C. Calhoun and his family would have eaten.

Luminaries lighted the sidewalk in front of the Hanover House, which was decorated in the Colonial Williamsburg tradition of ribbon, lace, natural greenery and candles. A beautiful Christmas tree trimmed in gold and white provided a backdrop for musical performances by several groups.

A return to a modern Christmas was found at the President's home. President and Mrs. Max Lennon were on hand to greet everyone as they toured the house and sampled tasty holiday treats.

Christmas brought to Clemson not only all the usual holiday decorations and events, but also a few new traditions which added to the excitement and magic of the holiday season.

NEWS FLASH

One of the greatest Spring Concerts was performed by Huey Lewis and the News during the month of March. Their performance simply seemed to amaze the crowd as soon as they performed their first song and continued to do so until the very last song ended.

Overwhelming the audience with songs such as "I know what I Like" and the theme from the motion picture "Back To The Future," "Back In Time," required the group to make only one of numerous encore performances. The group of four horn players, Tower of Power, which was introduced at the beginning of the concert and remained until the end continued to excite the audience until the concert was completed. Huey Lewis' concert proved to be a success as the group accomplished their one main goal of letting the audience have a great time.

The opening act, Delbert McClinton, was able to overcome the popularity of Huey Lewis and held the audiences' attention with well-performed songs such as "Shaky Ground." This group enabled the audience to hear old-fashioned rock 'n' roll as well as some blues songs that were performed with excellence. They have the opportunity of be- of becoming the success they are seeking.

PROGRESSIVE ROCKERS HIT CLEMSON

During the first weekend of October, REM gave a concert in Littlejohn Coliseum which was the second stop of their Work Tour. Lead singer Michael Stipe, drummer Bill Berry and the other members of the band, Mike Mills and Peter Buck, all seemed to enjoy the show as much as the audience did. Everyone was on his/her feet for the entire concert — from the opening number, "The Finest Worksong" to the end of the third encore. REM kept the audience moving by playing songs from many of their albums including "Fables of the Reconstruction," "Life's Rich Pageant," and "Document." Although the lyrics of many REM songs were impossible to understand, the crowd sang along with many songs such as "West of the Fields," "I Believe" and their hit "The One I Love." The opening act, 10,000 Maniacs also gave an enthusiastic performance of songs from their album "In My Tribe." The crowd particularly enjoyed the times that lead singer Natalie Merchant sang duets with Michael Stipe. Together they did a moving version of "Ain't No Sunshine When She's Gone," including impressive harmonizing and extending some verses while singing a cappella.

MAC ATTACK

In accordance with recent custom, Clemson had another concert this year as part of its Homecoming festivities. The performance given by Fleetwood Mac definitely was one of the best concerts in Littlejohn in recent years. Though the opening act, Cruzados, did not get the night off to a great start, Fleetwood Mac made up for lost entertainment and thoroughly pleased the near capacity crowd.

Fleetwood Mac appealed to all ages by playing both many of their "classics" from the seventies as well as a good bit of their newer material. Fleetwood Mac came to Clemson on a tour that marked the first tour that the band had been on without Lindsey Buckingham. Lindsey Buckingham was both a guitarist and co-lead vocalist with Stevie Nicks. The two newcomers the band brought to replace him performed better than was expected. One specialized in Blues and entertained the crowd with two of his own pieces. The concert was highlighted by a synthesizer solo by Mick Fleetwood. This solo was different in the fact that the synthesizer was made into a garment that Mick Fleetwood wore. By touching different areas on himself, he was able to create different instruments and sounds.

Even though this show did not have an extravagant stage set-up or a fantastic light show, it did provide good, solid rock n'roll to really boost a Homecoming weekend.

DEF-ENING EXPERIENCE

In 1984 when drummer Rick Allen lost his arm in a car accident, some had doubts as to whether the band Def Leppard would come back from such a tragedy. Well, come back they did — with a multi-platinum album, Hysteria, and a sold out world-wide concert tour.

Opening with "Stagefright" from the Pyromania album, the two-hour show included all its great classics, such as "Too Late for Love," "Bringing on the Heartbreak," "Rock of Ages," and of course, "Photograph." The concert was performed in the round and the band made sure every seat was a good seat by constantly moving from one side of the stage to the other. Even the drum set rotated. Lasers were used extensively — sometimes playing over the crowd and sometimes playing on screens that came down over the stage.

The band members themselves looked like they were out simply to have a great time. Lead singer Joe Elliot was a whirlwind, running around the stage constantly, encouraging the crowd to sing along with him. Guitarists Phil Collen, Steve Clark and Rick Savage proved that Def Leppard's critical acclaim was well deserved. Drummer Rick Allen showed that losing an arm was no handicap to drumming. He used an ingenious setup designed so that he could use both feet in addition to his arm.

Overall, everyone seemed to have a great time. No one wanted the show to end. When it finally did, the most prominent question was, "How soon will they be back?"

BLOWING THE BLUES

Dizzy Gillespie visited Clemson's Tillman Hall in October to prove that a 69-year-old man could still rock with the best of them. Coming onto stage with moves that Bill Cosby would die for, Dizzy led the crowd through 2 plus hours of hard driving jazz music. Never letting up for a minute, this jazz legend performed solos that would have winded a marathon runner and then went into one of his famous dance moves that had the audience gasping in awe.

Dizzy's vast repertoire included Thelonius Monk's "Round Midnight" and his own "A Night in Tunisia." The consumate performer, Dizzy got together some of the hottest backup musicians in the jazz community. Sam Rivers on saxophone, Ed Charrie on electric guitar, John Lee on electric bass, plus a drummer that could have taught Alex Van Halen a thing or two. They not only proved that they could follow Dizzy's lead, but each put up exciting solos of their own.

With Dizzy's unbelievable cheeks (how does he do that?!?), great moves, and arguably the best jazz music being played today, this was one show that had to be seen to be believed. Seeing how strong Dizzy played is no indication that this legend won't still be going strong well into his seventies.

ACADEMICS

Taking The Reins . . .

Clemson welcomed two deans to its faculty in 1987. The College of Nursing and the College of Sciences were headed by the new deans, Opal Hipps, who replaced Dean of Nursing, Mary Lohrm, and Bobby Wixson, who replaced Dean of Sciences, Henry Vogel.

Opal Hipps returned to Clemson's College of Nursing after an eight year absence. She was a member of the nursing faculty at Clemson from 1969 to 1979.

Among Dean Hipps' goals for the College of Nursing were plans for insuring that the curriculum was as strong as possible for both graduate and undergraduate programs. She also cited plans for fund raising efforts to increase research and the college's endowment.

Although Hipps said, "Education is our primary mission," she added that the College of Nursing "can and should develop in the areas of promoting the health of the community and taking its leadership role in the Upstate."

Hipps obtained her bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and held a doctorate in health education administration from the University of South Carolina.

Bobby Wixson took over the post of Dean of the College of Sciences on August 17, 1987. His experience with other land-grant institutions like Clemson was one of the assets Dean Wixson brought to the college. He was anxious to help in the transition Clemson was making to upgrade its programs and research.

Dean Wixson's goals for the College of Sciences included a reward system for the faculty, which was designed to best develop the faculty and staff. He sought to get the faculty more involved in industry, the community, and in travel. One of his main objectives focused on the assessment of where the College of Sciences stood and how to best utilize its resources for the future.

Dean Wixson ran an "open door policy" for students, often talking to them to learn their views and suggestions. As he put it, 'If the students were not here, we wouldn't be here."

The Calhoun College honors program presented the best students, faculty, and curricula Clemson had to offer. The twenty-five year old program continued to grow in 1987 with 487 honors students, compared to 1983's 210 students. Each of the University's nine colleges were represented in the honors program.

Calhoun College had several key features of attraction for its students. These included smaller classes of about twenty or fewer students. The smaller classes offered more individual attention for each student, as well as allowing the course to be taught at an appropriate level for the honors students. The honors classes were taught only by Clemson's best faculty. Honors classes were never taught by graduate students.

Another feature of the college was the honors seminars. Each year speakers and dignitaries were brought to Clemson to meet and discuss events with the Calhoun scholars. The Calhoun College lectures for 1987-88 featured such speakers as Dr. Ferrol Sams, an author of two novels and owner of a medical clinic in Georgia.

Dr. Sams spoke on "Creative Writing in Your Dotage." Psychiatrist Dr. Garth Wood presented "the principles of moral therapy" to Calhoun Scholars in his speech, "The Myth of Neurosis: Overcoming the Illness Excuse."

The 1988 President's Honors Colloquim featured Moorhead Kennedy, a State Department official who was one of the Iranian hostages held 444 days in 1979. Mr. Kennedy spoke on "The Great Satan: The Terrorist View of America." These lectures were open to the public free of charge.

Calhoun Scholars were chosen by several criteria. The incoming high school student was required to have a 1200 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT), as well as be in the top ten percent of his graduating class. The incoming transfer student, entering the honors program, had to have a 3.4 or higher grade point ratio (GPR), a higher GPR than is required for most college honors programs. The student also had to have been predicted, by the admissions office, to earn a 3.0 or better GPR while at Clemson.

The Clemson House provided the fifth and sixth floors for residences for 137 of the Calhoun Scholars. The housing provided for a community feeling between the honors students. The honors program fostered the feeling with a sports team, Honors Council Meetings, and picnics.

A new project for the college was the South Carolina Junior Scholars. It was officially titled the "Summer Science and Engineering Program" and was operated in cooperation with South Carolina high schools. Eighth grade students were allowed to take the SAT and the top six percent scorers were named Junior Scholars for high school. The distinction allowed them to participate in the summer program and was an advantage for those who would be seeking admission to Clemson at a later date.

For those students completing the honors program at Clemson, there were senior departmental honors awarded the evening before graduation. Students achieving the honors received an honors medallion made of bronze. To be considered for Senior Departmental Honors, the student had to have completed the university's requirements with a GPR of 3.4 and completed approved departmental honors courses at the 300 or 400 level. The student had to have earned twelve hours credit of the honors courses and have earned at least a B in each course. Students who worked toward Senior Departmental Honors started working toward the goal as early as the end of their sophomore year.

Calhoun College not only accepted bright, diligent, and creative students, but also helped them to focus their resources to become quality graduates of Clemson. Dr. Jack Stevenson, Director of Calhoun College, said about his job, "I like my job. I feel I have the best job on campus!"

School goes on

Michael J. Morga

The Graduate School at Clemson occupied a vital niche in university life. Graduate students not only were students, but acted as teaching assistants, tutors, and researchers. The Graduate School aimed to provide comprehensive teaching in special fields, offer instruction in the methods of independent investigation and to foster the spirit of research scholarship among its students.

Students in the graduate program had to have obtained a four year degree from an acceptable university and have the approval of the department or program head. The student also had to show evidence he or she would benefit from study in a graduate program. International students, in addition to having to pass the graduate record exam (GRE), had to pass the test of English as a Foreign Language, unless English was their native language. Those seeking professional degrees often were required to have professional experience and/or credentials, depending on the college awarding the degree.

Clemson University offered three research degrees, a Master of Arts, a Master of Science, and a Doctor of Philosophy. The university also offered courses for sixteen professional degrees: Doctor of Education, Specialist in Education, Master of Agriculture, Master of Agricultural Education, Master of Architecture, Master of Building Science and Management, Master of Business Administration, Master of City and Regional Planning, Master of Education, Master of Engineering, Master of Fine Arts, Master of Forestry, Master of Industrial Education, Master of Nutritional Sciences, Master of Parks, Recreation and Tourism Management, and Master of Professional Accounting.

Students who were working for a Master's degree were required to complete nine semester hours of graduate credit in one semester or two consecutive summer sessions or fifteen semester hours of graduate credit, six hours of which were research, in a twelve month period. Students who wished to obtain a Doctor of Philosophy degree were required to have twelve to twenty-four hours worth of graduate level courses and eighteen hours of doctoral research. Before graduation, the student was also required to pass a final oral exam. Students seeking Doctor of Education degrees had the same requirements as Doctor of Philosophy students, in addition to serving an internship. All graduate students were required to maintain an overall B average.

When asked why she chose Clemson's graduate program, Sashi Asirvatham, an international student, said, "It was my kismet. I am having fun!" she added with a smile.

The Graduate Student Association provided a spirit of commeraderie for the graduate students while addressing problems or issues that concerned its members. The organization provided support and an academic and cultural atmosphere for its members by providing better communication between departments and students.

Keeping up with the future

The latest stir in the Computer Department at Clemson was the new Computer Operations Center. The Operations Center could be found eight miles from campus at the Clemson Research Park, a 210 acre industrial park.

The new center had been in the university's plans for the last few years, but difficulties in building on campus encouraged the university to look into innovative ways to gain space. In October of 1986, ground breaking ceremonies were finally held with completion plans scheduled for December 1987. As luck would have it though, the construction ran ahead of the completion schedule and the Computer Center planned to move into the 40,000-square-foot facility by Thanksgiving.

The building was designed especially to house the university's mainframe computer and informational systems development group, a move which vacated an entire floor of Martin and some vital space in the Poole Agricultural Center. Computer consultants, already on campus, remained. Since the building was designed to house a computer, there were several features such as a raised floor for cooling the computers. Also, the wiring was run under the flooring. The building featured several backup systems in case of power failure. One backup system was battery operated, while another was a diesel system.

With all the special features of the building came extra costs. Half of the cost incurred was in support systems for the computer. These financial concerns, along with building costs, were defrayed by a private developer, the South Carolina Research Authority. Clemson leased the facility from the developer since that method was faster and more cost efficient than building on campus. Students did not notice much difference in their operations with the computer, although each student was assigned a new computer identification code.

It was hoped the research park would attract "new industries to the area with interests in electronics, fiber and polymer materials, advanced engineering fibers and composite materials, crop genetics, biomaterials, farm machinery, forestry products and robotics" according to the Clemson News Services. Industries such as these relied on Clemson research and were to be charged a fee for computer use. This allowed for any additional budget strains to be lightened.

As Dr. Christopher Duckenfield said the Computer Operations Center was a showcase for Clemson University and was a necessary addition to the university's plans to expand and to keep up with modern technology.

Alumni Master Teacher 1987

Mike McDonald. That was a name familiar to many students at Clemson. A name in 1987 associated with the prestigious Alumi Master Teacher's Award. The award was chosen by the students and officially announced during May graduation. As Mike McDonald said "It helped me recognize the good relationships I have been establishing while at Clemson."

The award included the traditional plaque, the chance to sit on stage during gradution, and a $1500 stipend. There were two main criterea upon which students based their votes for Alumni Master Teacher. Good classroom instruction and good contact with students outside of class were the two important aspects of judging. Prior to coming to Clemson, Dr. McDonald earned a bachlor's degree in industrial management from Georgia Tech in

Dr. Mike McDonald was honored by the students who chose him for Alumni Master Teacher 1987.

1971. Three years later at the University of Georgia, he acquired a master's degree in counseling psychology. Then, three years later in 1976, Dr. McDonald received his Ph.D. in organizational behavior from the University of Georgia. He worked part-time for both Furman and Queen's College in Charlotte.

But, it was while he was at Georgia Tech that Mike McDonald decided he loved teaching. "I realized one day that the greatest pleasures in my life were associated with the academic environment," he said. He attributed his love of teaching to the effect of some of his college professors.

Dr. McDonald taught two courses within the Management Department. One was the popular senior elective, "Human Resources Management." The course was a 400 level course and only open to seniors and graduate students. His second course was a basic survey course titled "Principles of Management," which he especially enjoyed teaching. He also worked as a consultant with many large businesses from hospital to textile companies such as Milliken. Dr. McDonald was active as a teacher in continuing education programs scheduled by Clemson's Office of Professional Development. He said his work outside of the Clemson classroom helped him relate his experiences to the undergraduate students and "students enjoy that."

With all these activities, Mike McDonald had little free time. With the spare moments he did capture though, he enjoyed snow skiing, sail boating, and traveling. Closer to home, he found gardening a relaxing pasttime. McDonald resided in a cabin with five acres of hardwoods and a small stream. Although he had no family, he did have a cat companion named "Buddy."

As Alumni Master Teacher, Dr. Mike McDonald smiled, "In a word, it's the most outstanding thing that has happened in the twelve years I have been at Clemson."

Getting paid for an education

Finishing college and becoming a part of the work force were always a part of every student's thoughts. It was a time of doubts and even fears. The question for many of the students was "Will I get the job I want?" or "Will I get the job at all?" Other students questioned their choice of major and career plans. With good reason, students worried that they were wasting four or more years of their lives.

About 500 students each year decided to combine working toward a degree and get a salary doing it. Beginning after their freshman year, students alternated semesters at school with semesters co-oping for businesses, industries, and the government. To complete the co-op requirement, students worked a minimum of three work periods with the same employer.

Students worked with the Cooperative Education staff to initiate their co-op experience. After the application procedure and orientation for the students, the staff worked with students to find the right job opportunity for them. Director of Cooperative Education Marty Williams said, "Students postpone graduation for the opportunity to co-op. We try to get to know each student individually and make co-oping a valuable experience."

For their efforts, students gained valuable work experience that made their curriculum more meaningful, improved prospects for permanent employment, reinforced career choices, and sharpened their career focus. Companies had the advantage of looking at prospective employees for an extended work period. Often, students who co-oped were looked at favorably for permanent employment.

Most students who co-oped were in the Engineering and Computer Science fields. A Federal grant provided by more students to co-op in the areas of Accounting, Forestry, and Textiles. The primary employers for students were Dupont, Milliken, IBM, and Duke Power. Graphic Communication major Karen Lott described her co-op experience, "Co-oping was one of the best educations I could get. I encountered the "Real World" situations that could not be taught in the class room. The contacts that I made will be an asset as I begin my career after graduation. The financial supplement was an incentive. Earning extra money helped when returning to campus."

Wellness challenges students

More people crowded into aerobics classes and joggers lined the sidewalks as increasing numbers of Clemson students and faculty not only joined the fitness craze, but adopted an entire wellness lifestyle.

According to Lynn Lesley, Wellness Coordinator at the Nursing Center, the concept of wellness went beyond simple physical fitness to encompass an entire philosophy of life. The wellness lifestyle incorporated emotional and spiritual well-being, environmental awareness and good nutrition along with physical fitness.

In order to educate people about wellness and encourage them to adopt a wellness lifestyle, the Nursing Center, along with other university departments, sponsored many wellness-related activities. A series of mini-lectures known as "Wellness Wednesday" included discussions on exercise, nutrition, time management and relaxation. Several walking groups were organized to encourage everyone to start an exercise program.

Scattered amid the fashionably color-coordinated leotards at aerobics were many blue and white T-shirts sporting the "Wellness Works at Clemson" logo. These owners were the proud participants of the first Wellness Challenge. Each of the 759 participants came to the Nursing Center for health screening at the beginning of the program. Measurements such as height, weight, blood pressure and percent body fat were taken. Each participant was given recommendations for his/her optimal weight and an exercise program. Everyone participated in an aerobic activity, such as swimming, walking or aerobics for at least thirty minutes three times a week for nine weeks. At the end of nine weeks the same measurements were taken again. Most participants were able to observe a decrease in their percent body fat along with an increased feeling of well-being.

A Fitness Festival was planned for the spring. This annual family event involved not only the Nursing Center, but also many other departments on campus with a health orientation. The recreation department, nutrition department, Fike and the athletic department planned games and booths with displays such as fast food analysis and blood pressure screening to educate people about wellness.

The Nursing Center worked to help people find a balance among the many different aspects of health in order to improve the quality of their lives.

Healthy Profession

Q — Why did you decide to go into nursing?

A — Because I enjoy helping people. Also all the opportunities that being a nurse will offer me after I graduate.

Q — What opportunities are these?

A — One of these opportunities is the recent increase in average starting pay. A few years ago the average starting pay was under twenty thousand dollars as opposed to as much as twenty four thousand now. Not only is the pay better but it is alot easier to advance in salary.

Q — Are there more than just monetary opportunities?

A — Yes, there are educational advantages such as hospitals now offer programs to send nurses back to school for their masters and doctorates. There are also position advancement opportunities within the hospital that you work in. There are also other jobs besides working for a hospital. There are also fringe benefits. One of these benefits is the new things that hospitals are doing for the nurses such as loan markets. Nurses can now apply for loans and the hospital will pay for your education your senior year if you agree to work for them for two to three years after you graduate.

Q — What other jobs are now available?

A — There are now very new fields that a nurse may go into such as Home Health, Community Health, Psychiatric Nursing, Nursing Practitioner, and many others in the education field. The Armed Forces offer many opportunities for scholarships through R.O.T.C.(to help nursing students through school). Opportunities after school are even better such as travel experience, educational advancement, rank in service advancement, pay advancements, and the benefits for retirement, insurance and allowances are extremely tempting.

Q — Do you like what is happening in nursing that points to the future?

A — A good thing that is happening in nursing at this time is the growing respect that is being given to the nurses by doctors and others. Another thing is that nursing is now recognized as a profession and regarded as such.

Giving students a voice

In January 1986, Dean Ryan Amacher decided he wanted to increase the communication between the Dean's office and the students and thus the Dean's Student Advisory Council was born. It's the first council of its kind here at Clemson University.

The Council's primary purpose was to serve as a liaison between the Dean and the students of the College of Commerce and Industry. To this end, the members of the council included representatives from all organizations, honorary and professional, associated with the college. Chairman Chad Dalton said that each organization decided who to put on the council and once elected, a member may serve until graduation.

Any student with a problem, gripe, or suggestion needed only to contact any member of the council. In the future, a suggestion box would be placed near Sirrine library so that students would have even more opportunity to speak their mind. Suggestions that were investigated included a lounge for students and a monthly newsletter to be sent to every student of the College of Commerce and Industry.

In 1987, the Council gave out the first "College of Commerce and Industry Teacher of the Year" award. The award was presented at Honors and Awards Day in April. It was designed to recognize outstanding teaching in the classroom as well as a willingness to help students outside the classroom. The first recipient of the award was Mary Ann Prater from the School of Accountancy. She received a plaque inscribed with her name and a cash award. The council planned to make this an annual award with the teacher being decided by a majority vote of the students in the college.

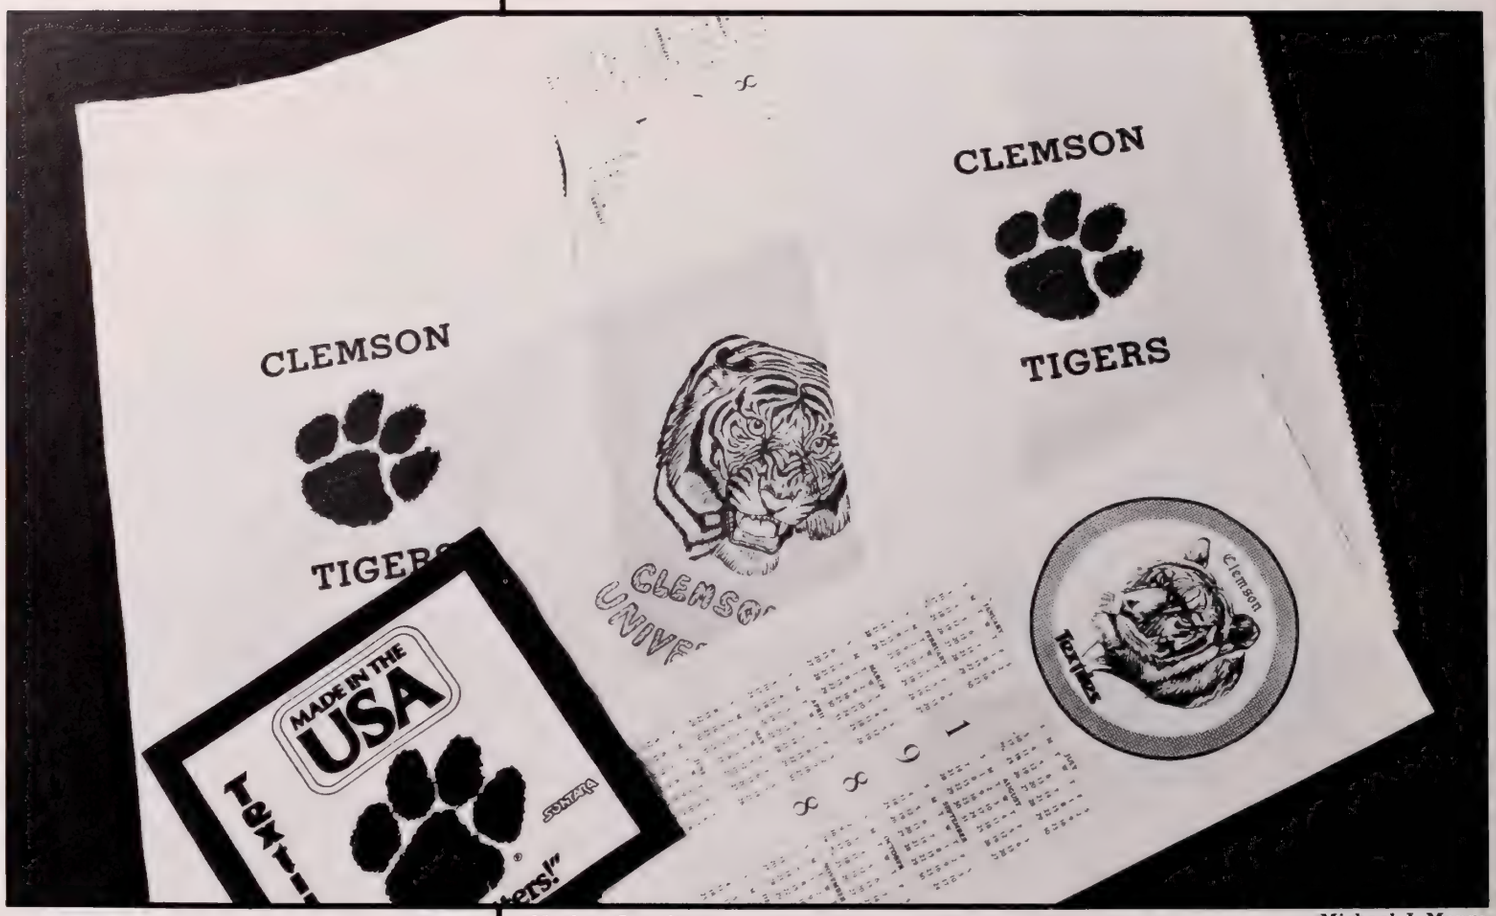
Textiles: Make it, take it



Marlene Laguitan

Michael J. Morga

One of the smallest departments on campus, the Textile Department had fewer than 120 students in total graduate and undergraduate enrollment. This small group of students and department faculty stayed busy experiencing and learning about technology in textiles. Fourteen upperclassmen and faculty members visited France to exhibit current and up-coming trends in the field. Another trip centered on textiles in the fashion industry. Twenty-two students visited five companies in New York, the center of fashion forecasting.

Turning fibers into usable textile materials was the purpose of the forty-three labs located in Sirrine Hall. In these labs, students had access to even ultra-sophisticated, current equipment.

The Textile department makes several Clemson souvenirs.

Michael J. Morga

Marlene Laguitan

The Textile department was in the unique position of offering a gift to its graduates that was designed by the department and was a product of the industry. Graduates and people contributing to the department received a Clemson towel. The white, orange and purple towel bearing the school name and several small tiger paws was a prized possession because they were so difficult to get.

Other projects from the textile department included calendars printed and distributed each year. These were decorated with the school emblem and also the "textile" logo. This was part of a promotion for the department in the University as well as the industry itself.

At the "Textile Bowl" where Clemson played against N.C. State, the Textile department designed and had printed T-shirts to which they distributed to football fans on both sides. Also, a "spirit rag" was handed out at the game. It too had the textile logo. All these textile projects made the Textile department more visible to students. According to Professor Frank Hunter "The textile industry has received a lot of bad press lately because of plant closings, but that is turning around." All the items made and distributed are a positive reflection on the industry. Dr. Edward Vaughn said, "This department of the University provides the professional talent that will run the textile industry."

Undergraduate labs A fact of life

Labs have always been and always will be a part of life at college. Almost every student, whether they are in the college of liberal arts, sciences, or engineering, had to take a lab at some point during their college career. About 10,000 students were enrolled in at least one of the approximately 800 labs offered.

Most students began their lab experience as freshman when they were required to take one year of science with a lab. They could choose between such courses as chemistry, astronomy, physics, or biology. Other freshman labs included language labs and computer labs. Most freshman claimed that the labs at college were alot different than their labs at high school. Freshman lab students Susie Cooper and Stacy Todd said "Labs at college were a lot more involved but also a lot more interesting than they were in high school."

According to schedule coordinator David Fleming, due to the increased size of the incoming freshman class, this was the first time that all the laboratory seats in basic science were filled.

As a student continued his/her education the labs became more difficult and more time consuming. Most science majors found that they averaged three labs each semester until they graduated. Nursing students had clinicals which required them to spend time working at local hospitals. They were required to complete three clinical assignments a semester during their junior and senior years.

Architecture and engineering students also found themselves spending a lot of time in the laboratory. Architecture labs consisted of students working on design projects, such as texture, light, and acoustics. Engineering labs included unit operations labs where not only safety glasses but hard hats were required, circuit labs and various design labs.

One of the most common complaints about labs was that much more time was put into the lab than the awarded amount of credit reflected. Students received between one and three hours of credit for their efforts with some basic science labs receiving no credit as they were considered part of an accompanying lecture.

New to Clemson was the ten dollar fee for all classes designated as labs. Members of such organizations as Tiger Band and Chorus were also required to pay lab fees. Money collected from these fees would be used to purchase new equipment and supplies which would improve the quality of the labs for students.

The Universe Beyond

The door to the room did not look any different. It was just a regular classroom-type door with a black plate labeling it. Kinard room 112 was different though. It held a special magic, for it was from there you could see the universe. Clemson's planetarium brought the unknown "out there" close to the students. Almost close enough to touch.

Built in 1961, the planetarium's dome was twenty-fout feet in diameter with a height of nineteen feet at the center. Probably, the most important feature of the room was not the magnificently white dome, but rather the projector that sat at eye level in the room's center. The projector consisted of a large ball, at one end, with holes and lenses to allow light from an arc lamp to produce the array of stars that dotted the ceiling.

The room could hold forty-five adults. The size limited the planetarium's regular use by astronomy classes since the classes usually had around sixty students. The astronomy classes and labs did meet at least once a semester in the planetarium, but astronomy professors have to juggle the large classes to allow students more lecture time in the room.

"There is little noticable change in the shapes of the constellations in the past one thousand years," said Professor Thomas Collins as the lights dimmed, giving the eyes time to adjust. There are two major changes in the night sky from time to time. The position of the planets and the position of the moon depend on the time of day, and the time of year.

Professor Collins said there was some slight distortion in viewing the stars in the planetarium due to the curved nature and small size of the dome. Three to four thousand stars are visible in the night sky and about half of those could be projected for viewing. The stars formed a sky with familiar constellations such as the Big and Little Dippers along with less familiar ones such as Pegusus, Andromeda, the dolphin, and the swan constellations. The Milky Way could also be seen with its couple hundred billion stars. The Milky Way's neighboring galaxy, composed of perhaps five hundred billion stars, appeared as a small fuzzy blot on the otherwise black, velvety sky.

Professor Collins projected the ecliptic line, a line with the months of the year marked off, along the top of the dome. Any date during the year, the night sky could be observed by finding the month on the line and rotating the projector to that point on the line. Plates with red lights marked North, South, East and West along the walls of the planetarium. Every twelve hours, due to the earth's rotation, the stars appear to move one-hundred and eighty degrees from their starting positions.

The planetarium was not exclusively for the use of astronomy students. Presentations were made for any "reasonably size groups" which were most often elementary or high school students or occassionally senior citizen groups. Commentary for the presentation was geared toward the age level of the group. A slide program was presented before each demonstration. The slide show was often about the solar system.

Demonstrations were not regularly scheduled for the public, which often accounted for lack of knowledge about the planetarium. Professor Collins and Dr. Phil Flower did hold regular open house when Halley's Comet passed through our part of the solar system. The main push against open houses was time according to Professor Collins. In earlier long range plans, the Department of Physics and Astronomy requested a new planetarium that would be thirty feet in diameter, but with the school budget, the new building was not forthcoming.

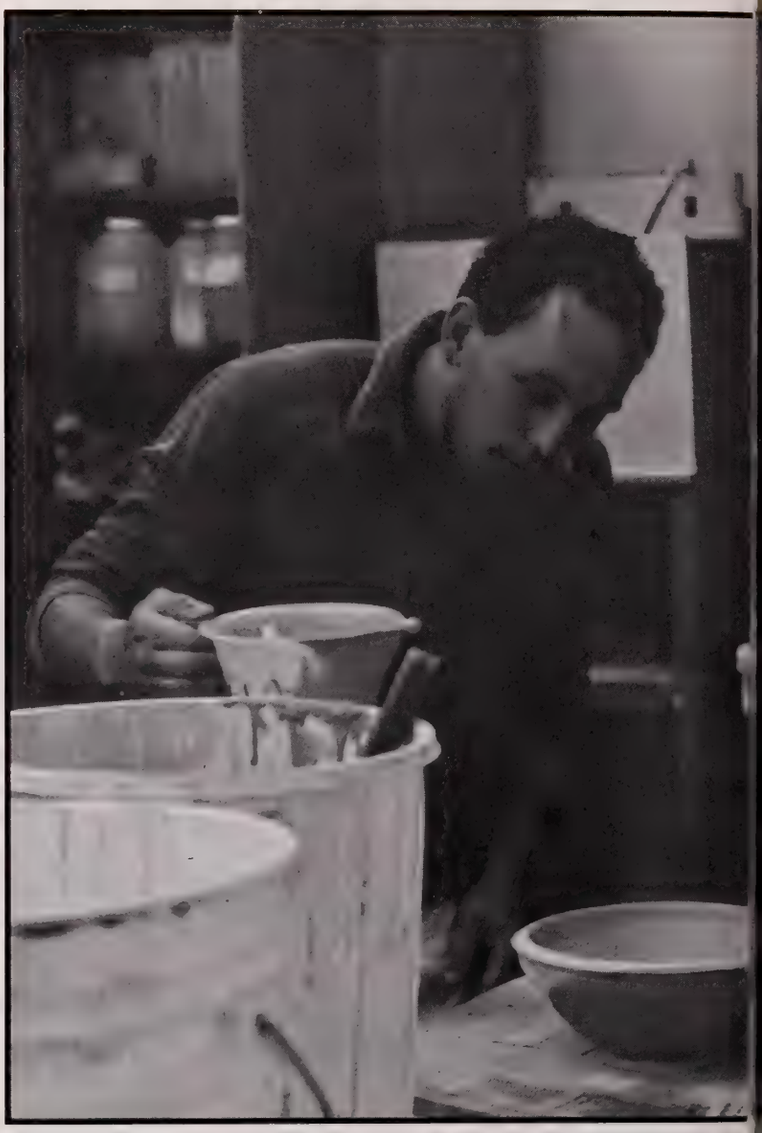
The Learning of Art

Approved in the spring of 1987 by the Commission on Higher Education, a new degree was added to the College of Architecture. The charter students enrolled under the specialized Bachelor of Fine Arts Program which emphasized visual arts. The program began during the first summer session of 1987.

The curriculum for the new degree called for students to take fifty percent of their classes in studio arts or related areas, and the remaining half of their studies to be a well-balanced combination of general, non-art classes. With the studio arts portion of the curriculum, students learned about eight areas of visual arts including painting, drawing, graphic design, ceramics, printmaking, photography, and sculpture. Courses were not limited to "strict" art. The varied curriculum would "permit the student to develop his of her individual talents," said Dr. John T. Acorn, professor in the college of Architecture.



Clay sculpture requires great concentration, precision, and a steady hand.

All photos by George Michael Nelon

Careers for graduates depend on the students. Being exposed to different types of visual arts gave the student a better chance to find an area of specialization. Jobs could range from working for the South Carolina Art Commission to employment in a museum or even to being an independent artist.

Although new majors often attracted large numbers of students eager to test out new programs, attempts were taken to keep this major small. Dr. Acorn commented, "this degree is for people who are very much committed to the arts."

Forming Art Forms

Many people in Clemson had no idea that we even had an art gallery. Not many people knew about the gallery because it was placed in Lee Hall, the Architecture building. Lee Hall, located away from the central part of campus, was visited mostly by Art, Architecture and Building Science students and faculty who had classes or offices in the building. This limited the public exposure of the gallery. Although the gallery could have had more exposure if it was located closer to the main part of campus, it was easier for the Architecture Department to keep up with the exhibits with the gallery in Lee Hall. Another reason for the gallery being unknown was a lack of advertising. Very few people were told about the gallery and its exhibits.

The gallery attracted many very prominent artists. The artists that put their art work in the gallery covered a wide variety of art mediums such as photography, sculpture, and painting to name just a few. Visiting artists were not the only ones that showed their work in the gallery. Many of the professors in Lee Hall also placed exhibits in the gallery. Among these professors were Tom Diamond, Sidney Cross, and Mark Hudson.

The gallery also gave students a chance to show their work. Both graduate students and undergraduates got a chance to use the gallery. The gallery also held an art sale at Christmas in which artwork created by Clemson students was sold to the public.

A Different Kind of Classroom

Shifting roles from being the student to being the teacher was an adjustment for students as they entered the student teaching phase of work toward certification as a teacher. Sixty full, consecutive days of supervised teaching were required of students seeking a degree in education or certification in teaching.

Twelve full weeks were scheduled for student teaching to meet requirements of state law. For three weeks before beginning student teaching, students took a course in diagnostic reading. Students must have completed 95 hours including prerequisite classes. A minimum grade point ratio was also required to begin the program.

In the fall 57 students completed their student teaching and 125 students taught in the spring of 1987. Most student teachers were placed in Anderson, Pickens, and Oconee county schools. A few students did their teaching in Greenville county. Student teachers switched roles and began preparing lessons to teach students, managing students in the classroom, and evaluating students. According to Dr. Carolyn Briscoe, who supervises student teachers, "student teaching provides practice, practical experience, direct contact with students, responsibility of managing a classroom of students, and actual teaching experience."

State law mandated much of what students did during their student teaching experience. Students must have taken two professional knowledge tests before beginning student teaching. The Educational Improvement Act established the Assessment of Performance Teaching (APT) as a uniform means of evaluation for the test.

Students teaching was a step toward becoming a regular classroom teacher. Performance in student teaching was as important as transcripts and grades in the classroom to schools hiring teachers. Student teaching became an important transitional period from being a student to being a teacher.

Hold the Presses

"Free at Last" was a term used when the NCAA probation ended for Clemson and the term was used again among the graphic communications students and faculty when they began to occupy new space in Godfrey Hall at the front door of the Clemson Campus. For years the graphic communications program had grown within very tight confines in Freeman Hall until the seams burst. In August, after several years of planning, delays, and redesigns, the Godfrey Hall facility was occupied for the first time by the graphic communications laboratories.

The entire main floor was divided into three areas to teach the fundamentals all the way to the latest technologies in the preparation and mass production of print media.

It was indeed high-tech in a traditional environment and was a fun place to teach and learn. The building, a landmark on the Clemson campus, originally constructed in 1898 and renovated numerous times in its history, was partially restored to the extent that original hand brick has been exposed through the graphics laboratories along with the original floor. The large floor to ceiling windows loomed around the north end of the building, which was where the presses were located. It provided a very open base, which made it easy to work and learn. This facility which was sometimes referred to as a "graphic learning factory," was an education/industry partnership effort with many hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of equipment provided by the industry as an investment in future professionals to help lead its way. Nowhere else in the United States, if not the world, housed one press room with operating equipment in all of the major printing methods — gravure, screen printing, offset lithography, and flexography. There were both sheet and web (roll-fed) presses and single and multicolor equipment. The students in this program were learning to go into what were called the "people people professions" in the printing industry, but the method used by Clemson was unique in that every student designed and manufactured products from beginning to end with his or her own hands. This method of preparing people not only developed their ability to think and solve problems amd communicate with others, but possibly most important was the development of a real empathy and appreciation for the complexities within each of these processes. The Clemson student worked among technical specialists who were very good at what they did and made the most complex sometimes appear quite simple. It was the "appreciation" of this element that made the difference for many Clemson graduates.

In addition to printing equipment, all of the preparatory equipment and facilities were available too. Godfrey Hall had two color separation electronic scanners which were very sophisticated devices that analyze, use a number of computers to process the information from color originals, and output via lasers to photographic film the images ready for color proofing and printing. In addition to the photographic processing equipment available in the past, there were three additional process cameras, including one which was interfaced to a computer for analysis of the originals and automatic input to the camera controls.

The list of equipment could go on and on, but its purpose was met as it served nearly 200 graphic communications majors as well as the substantial Master's degree program in Industrial Education.

Industry used this learning factory, too, with a full time person devoted to running courses for industry both on and off campus. Since learning of the facilities, there have been numerous requests from industry for Clemson to conduct experimental work, primarily in the area of product testing. This proved to be another promising source of support in the future for both undergraduate and graduate students. All of these activities have been good for the Clemson graphic communications graduate as well as students in the course of their preparation since the internships and demand for graduates have grown along with the facilities.

U.S.S. Cairo Back in the Spotlight

U.S.S. CAIRO

The U.S.S. Cairo was constructed in 1861 at Maurd City, Illinois. From January 1862 to December 1962, the vessel served the Union forces in the Civil War. A Confederate torpedo (mine) in the Yazoo River sunk the gunboat. The boat remained on the bottom of the river near Vicksburg, Mississippi until it was discovered in 1956.

By 1960, the first items were raised, including a gunport, the pilot house and navel cannon. The vessel itself was not raised until 1964. As objects were brought up, necessary preservation for wood was done. The gunboat itself, however, was not preserved. The bulk of the remains of the boat were left in a shipyard in 17 large wooden sections.

Michael J. Morga

Until 1977 the wooden fabric of the gunboat was left untreated. In 1977 the vessel was moved to the National Military Park in Vicksburg.

Due to being submerged, the boat's material was very waterlogged. The wood began to deteriorate rapidly when the wood was exposed to air. The potential loss of up to 70 percent of the volume of wood prompted a joint project by the National Parks Service and the Department of the Interior to study and make recommendations for preservation of the U.S.S. Cairo. An inspection revealed that most wooden surfaces had deteriorated significantly.

Two groups from the University were called on to assist in the project. Saving the remains of the boat required the expertise of the architecture and forestry departments. Dr. Witherspoon of the College of Architecture and Dr. David Hon, a professor in the College of Forest and Recreation Resources headed teams from the University who worked on the boat. Studying the design of the boat and the structure of the wood fabric were part of the preservation process.

Critical and permanent damage was done to the gunboat, however many invaluable artifacts were recovered from the vessel. These included a photograph of an unidentified women and child, probably the wife and daughter of a crew member. Other objects recovered were, a thirty pounder Parrot rifle, comb, watch, pocket knife, and several utensils marked with the owners' initials. The deterioration continued to proceed due to weathering and environmental factors. Efforts were made to preserve the "ironclad's" condition. Lost in battle after one year of service, the U.S.S. Constructive destruction

Fire was one of man's earliest blessings and worst enemies. When fire and forest occured in the same sentence, it usually meant disaster and mass destruction for acres of forests and thousands of animals. As Dr. David Van Lear of Clemson's College of Foresty pointed out, controlled forest fires not only were used by early Indians and settlers, but also served many purposes for man and offered more benefits for nature.

Prescribed burning was the term given for controlled forest fires. It served the Southern landowner in an economical sense by clearing underbrush and undergrowth of a forest cheaper than by mechanical means or herbicides. This clearing was desired to help keep down the growth of hardwood trees since pine was a more economical crop. The burnings were done in a range of every four years to ten years. Keeping down the hardwoods but not eliminating them from the burned area was accomplished by a type of prescribed burning called low intensity burning. In a low intensity fire, the flames averaged less than four feet high. Prescribed burning also served man by improving an area used for grazing. After the fire, new plant shoots grew which served as a valuable nutrient food for cattle and other domestic animals.

The natural benefits of prescribed burning were also great. Since low intensity burnings usually are done at a slow rate, most wildlife had time to escape the approaching flames. The wildlife benefited in much the same way as domesticated animals. New hardwood sprouts provided a more nutritious food source for some species. Burning was not carried out during the nesting seasons to help reduce wildlife mortality. Another benefit to wildlife was that the burned areas became sites for seedlings and natural seeding especially for mixed pine and hardwood forests.

The environmental effects of prescribed burning were not as detrimental as the effects of chemical or mechanical methods. Dr. Van Lear said there was "no increase of sediment or nutrients in the water quality." Two to three million acreas of Southern forests are prescribed burned each year. This burning led to less destruction in the event of wildfires since it eliminated the fuel buildup on the forest floors. Prescribed burning did not lead to soil erosion since the root systems of plants were left intact and a floor of ash helped hold top-soil. The ash also provided a type of natural fertilizer for the new growth occuring.

"Air pollution from large scale prescribed burning," according to Dr. Van Lear, was the biggest problem with the procedure. This problem can be overcome if foresters work more closely with the Weather Service and burn only under proper atmospheric conditions to facilitate the dispersal of the smoke.

Forestry students, in an outdoor lab, learned how to properly ignite and control the prescribed burning on a low intensity scale for undergrowth control. High intensity fires were used to clear an area after harvesting of the trees. Students were taken to the Sumter National Forest to view the effects of high intensity burning.

Dr. Van Lear commented that prescribed burning was "essentially the same thing" that the American Indians did to help clear hardwood growth and making living off the land easier. The cleared forests helped draw game in close to the villages. White settlers of the 1700's described magnificent forests clear of undergrowth. This was probably due to prescribed burning by Indians. The settlers continued the practice that made surrounding forests more pleasant and safe for hunting and working. The vegetation of these forests adapted to the frequent burnings. The pine trees developed thick bark and high crowns, both resistant to low intensity fires. The Indians burned mainly in the winter months and after rains to help control the fires.

With the exception of machinery, prescribed burning has changed little over the past few decades. Dr. Van Lear, in "Prescribed Fire — Its History, Uses, and Effects in Southern Forest Ecosystems," wrote, "Abuse of the practice is the best way to lose it, and forestry can little afford the loss of such a valuable tool."

Tammy A. Woolbright

Dr. David Van Lear, as a member of the Forestry Department, played an integral part in forest management around the area.

Smokey Bear's theme, "Only you can make a difference," was observed since prescribed burning helped cut down on the number and severity of forest fires.

CURBi moves forward

Yuan Zheng, associate professor of electrical and computer engineering, helped Clemson University get a head start in the field of robotics with the development of CURBi. CURBi stood for Clemson University Robot Biped. CURBi was special because it was the first robot to walk on two legs.

The purpose for developing CURBi was two-fold. First, to develop a robot that could travel in confined areas with uneven terrain. Robots that have wheels or multiple legs needed large areas with even floors to operate. However, many places, like a nuclear power station, did not fit these conditions.

Professor Yuan Zheng works with CURBi's legs.

Michael J. Morga

This is why it was important to develop a bipedal robot that could travel anywhere. Savannah River Laboratory was helping to fund the project because futher development of CURBi could produce a robot well suited to work in high risk areas of a nuclear power plant.

The second reason CURBi was developed was to aid in the study of human locomotion. This could help in the development of walking devices to replace wheelchairs. Another benefit would be the development of mechanical braces to help people regain mobility lost to injury or illness.

CURBi was the first step in the development of bipedal robotics. Zheng's work with bipedal robotics earned him the Presidential Young Investigator Award for 1987 which was given by the National Science Foundation. Graduate students also worked on the project which gave them good hands-on practice and experience. CURBi's development has caught the attention of many people. It was reported on by many publications including USA Today, Popular Mechanics and Robotics World.

With flat surfaces already conquered by CURBi Zheng hoped that as early as the summer of 1988 that CURBi would be moving up slopes and climbing stairs. CURBI's continued development will mean a bright future for Yuan Zheng and Clemson's electrical and computer engineering department.

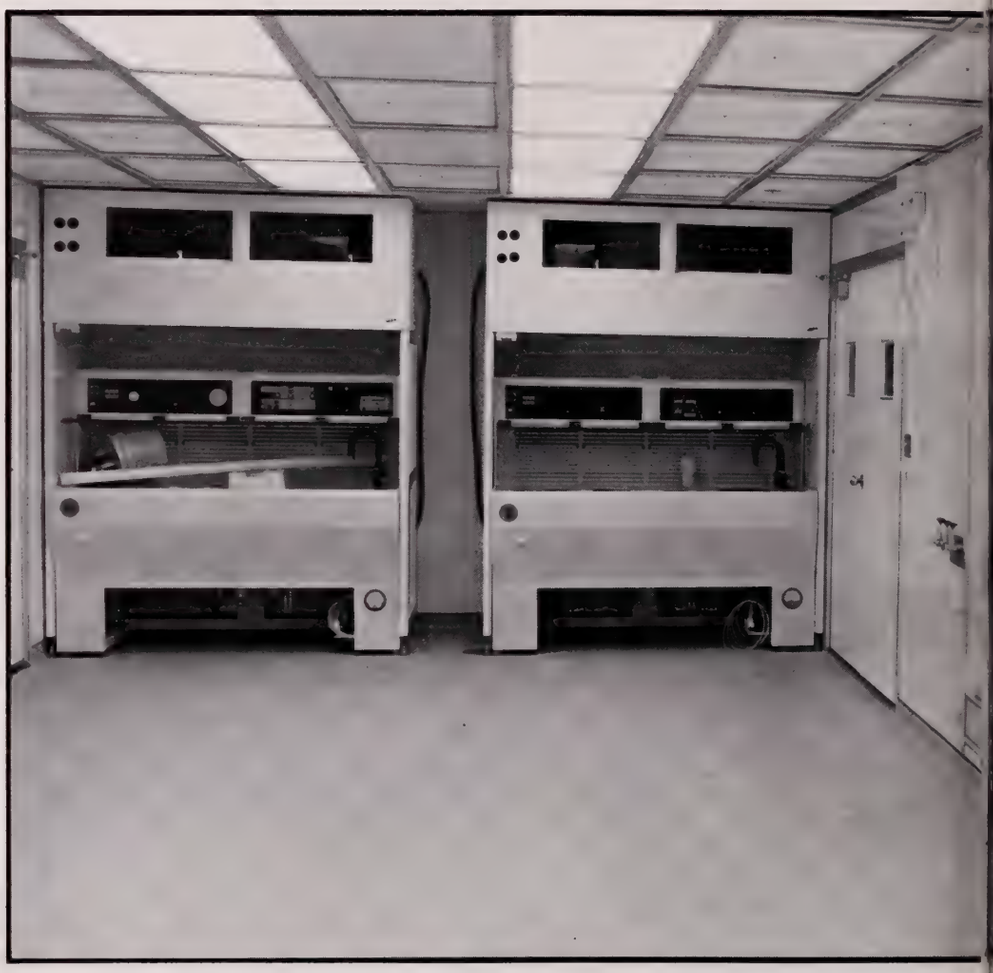
The only clean room on campus

In the basement of Riggs Hall, a class 100 clean room was constructed. Class 100 meant that every cubic foot of space in the room contained less than one hundred particles greater in size than 0.5 microns. An average office room was considered class 100,000 with many large particles floating around in the air. An air handling unit was used to filter outside air as it entered the room. The air inside the room was recycled and only a small amount of air from the outside was admitted at a time. The temperature in the room was not allowed to vary more than two degrees and the humidity was kept constant at forty percent. The room used the same type of filter system as a hospital operating room but it was necessary to keep the room cleaner than an operating room because of the sensitivity of fabricating integrated circuits for which the room was used. The room was also used to fabricate special test structures for the Center for Semiconductor Device Reliability Research.

The room's use mainly consisted of the fabrication of semi-custom integrated circuits because that type of circuit could be fabricated much quicker than normal integrated circuits. This was important because undergraduate students needed to learn how to make the circuits they had designed. Normal integrated circuits took seven months to make, while the semi-custom integrated could be fabricated in the limited time of a semester.

Work began on the clean room in May 1987 and was finished in Febuary 1988. The construction of this room required special construction techniques and materials. The clean room was needed because the features of an integrated circuit were so small that dust could make the connection of transistors, with a metal line only five microns in size, impossible.



Construction of the room to produce semi-custom integrated circuits is almost completed.

The clean room is located on campus in the basement of Riggs Hall.

Mechanical engineering and bioengineering were also interested in use of the room.

Space for Rent

When the Chemistry department moved to the Hunter Chemistry Building a great deal of space was left vacant in Brackett Hall. There was considerable indecision about which department would get the space. One idea that was pondered was to fully renovate the building and move social sciences and earth sciences into the space. In the end, the psychology department was the big winner when they made the move from Hardin to Brackett Hall.

One reason the psychology department got the space was that, because of the growth of the department, they were desperate for space. In 1982, the department had 129 majors and, by 1987, the number had grown to 300. The classrooms that the psychology department occupied in the basement of Hardin Hall were small and poorly lighted. The faculty had no room to conduct research and all psychology labs were forced to use the same room. The fact that space was so limited had slowed the fast growth of the department.

The department was extremely pleased with its new location in Brackett Hall. Even though the building was designed to house the Chemistry Department, the psychology department found that it suited their needs very well. They occupied three floors of the west wing, had labs on the second floor of the north wing and offices in the south wing. The Psychology Department had 17 faculty members, so much space was needed for offices. In Hardin Hall the offices were so small the professors almost literally had to back out of them. The new offices in Brackett Hall were much larger and more comfortable. The department felt that the new space in Brackett Hall should satisfy their need for space for the next five to ten years depending on the growth of the department. The faculty gained enough space to set up long term research projects. The biggest benefit of the expanded space was to the labs.

Some of the old chemistry lab rooms were vacant and were not available for use until the building could be completely renovated. Renovation of the building was expected to be complicated by the presence of asbestos which would have to be removed. Because of this, only limited changes could be made to the building when the Psychology Department moved in. The building held great potential for the future. When renovated, there was expected to be 64,000 square feet of usable space in the building.

The Psychology Department moved into Brackett Hall between the spring and fall semesters of 1987. Because they were able to move between semesters the move was not very disruptive to students or the faculty. Dr. Eugene Galluscio, head of the Psychology Department, said they were "absolutely delighted with the support received from the physical plant" during the moving process. The Psychology Department was pleased to be able to call Brackett Hall home.

Heavenly retreat

Even in 1987, there were those who did not know about the Agricultural Sales Center. The Center was located inconspicuously on the first floor of Newman Hall. There was no advertising done for the Center, the only publicity came from word of mouth. The Center specialized in the sale of ice cream, blue cheese, milk, butter, and eggs.

The center was an outlet for the surplus products of the College of Agriculture. The profits from the center were sent to the state. Products began at the dairy barn of the College of Agriculture. Milk was pasteurized at the Sales Center's dairy plant. The eggs that were produced came from the University's poultry farm.

The Center was open from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday thru Friday and on Saturdays. Sunday was also a big day for sales. During the week, ice cream cones and milkshakes were the most popular with students. At 55 cents for a single scoop and 80 cents for a double scoop, students could afford to treat themselves often. The regular ice cream flavors were chocolate, vanilla, and strawberry. Also usually available were orange-pineapple, peach, butter pecan, lemon custard, and chocolate mint chip. Animal research with a twist

It sounded like a science fiction movie set or some farm of the future. The star of this feature was not a figment of someone's imagination though or from the distant future. Clemson's "cow with a window" drew a lot of attention from interested students, researchers, and most of all, farmers anxious to increase the efficiency of digestion by their cattle and other ruminants. Dr. Thomas C. Jenkins was one of Clemson's researchers of ruminant digestion.

Dr. Jenkins' research involved one of several cows and three sheep with the special "windows." The openings took only one hour to implant into the animal's side and opened into the rumen or small intestine. One sheep had two openings, one to each area. The rumen is a specialized area, one of four compartments of all ruminant stomachs. In the rumen could be found many types of bacteria aiding in the breakdown of plant cellulose. The openings to the digestive tract areas did not adversely affect the animal in any way. The animal did not experience a shorter life span than would have been otherwise expected. According to Dr. Jenkins, "the animals did not mind the sample being taken" from the rumen or small intestine. The windows were only large enough to insert an arm for collecting samples and were closed with a cap to the outside.

Dr. Jenkins' research centered on the bacteria that could be found in the rumen. He collected samples of partially digested food and bacteria from the rumen which he used in experiments concerning phospholipids. He was interested in improving the fermentation process by increasing the number of phospholipids in the stomach. Phospholipids are composed of fatty acids, a glycerol molecule, and a phosphate group. It was hoped that a feeding program could be developed that would help the animal get more energy out of the hay it digested. Dr. Jenkins was also interested in how the lipid digestion by the bacteria affected the growth and function of the ruminant.

Before he came to Clemson, Dr. Jenkins worked at Ohio State. There he helped find a new method that allowed ruminants to be fed high fat diets without upsetting their digestive systems. The process was patented. The diet kept the high fat concentration from killing the rumen bacteria that were usually not tolerant of high fat concentrations. The extra fat produced more energy for the ruminant to utilize from a smaller amount of food. The diet stressed higher levels of fat-containing foods such as whole cotton seeds and soybeans.

Dr. Jenkins was one of the professors at Clemson doing regular research with ruminant digestion. His research with the "windowed animals" held much promise for improving the cost/benefit ratios for the smaller farmer and large-scale cattle industries, and eventually the consumer. It was hoped Clemson could learn much from its collection of "specially equipped" research animals.

History lives on Fort Hill

Nestled in the center of campus where students learn about and experience future-oriented technological advances, is Fort Hill, rich in historical depth concerned with not only the college and its beginnings, but with the country and its past leaders and events.

Fort Hill once dominated the campus, which was then an 1100 acre plantation that overlooked the Seneca River. The first owner was James McElhenny, the Presbyterian minister of Old Stone Church. He built the original house around 1802. It was then called Clergy Hall. Mrs. John Ewing Calhoun purchased the home in 1824, and presented it to her daughter, Mrs. John C. Calhoun. The house was renamed Fort Hill in honor of Fort Rutledge, an old fort which had been built on the land in 1776 as protection from the Indians. John Cadwell Calhoun, who served as a US Congressman and Senator, Secretary of War and State, and finally Vice-president, lived at Fort Hill with his wife from 1825-1850. It was during this time that the house was enlarged to its present size of fourteen rooms.

Four years after the death of John C. Calhoun, in 1854, his wife sold Fort Hill to their son, Andrew Pickens Calhoun. When he died in 1865, he still had not paid for it, so the plantation was eventually passed to Mrs. Calhoun's oldest heir, Anna Calhoun Clemson, wife of Thomas Green Clemson. The home was special to the Clemson's because it was where they were wed in 1838. While living at Fort Hill, Thomas G. Clemson was active in the Pendleton Farmers Society, which sparked the idea for beginning an agricultural college. Before Mr. and Mrs. Clemson's deaths, they willed the plantation to the state of South Carolina stipulating an agricultural college to be built there. Mr. Clemson's will provided that Fort Hill should always be preserved as a historical shrine. At least three rooms were to be open to the public and in the sale of household goods, sufficient furniture be reserved to furnish these rooms.

Fort Hill was opened to the public on March 1, 1931. Miss Ida Calhoun was the first caretaker. The house was filled with original furnishings that were kept at Fort Hill by Clemson's request. Other items in the house were original pieces that were donated by descendants of the Calhouns and Clemsons. Probably the most famous piece in the house is the Constitutional sideboard. It was made of mohagony paneling acquired from the frigate Constitution before dismantling was stopped by public objections. It was originally given to Henry Clay, who gave it to John C. Calhoun after a speech defending the frigate Constitution. Many portraits by Clemson hang in Fort Hill, including a self-portrait and a work entitled, "Madonna and Child." Calhoun set up the garden for his crippled daughter Camelia, who loved flowers. The east side row of cedars on the estate were a gift from Daniel Webster.

Fort Hill was designed as a national landmark in 1975, qualifying it for matching federal grants for preservation of the structure. The university and the John C. Calhoun division of the Daughters of the Calhoun division of the Daughters of the Confederacy set up the Fort Hill Endowment as another financial resource to ensure that Thomas Clemson's will is carried out.

Clemson's Best-all-around

April 30, 1987 marked the end of fifty years of service to Clemson for the university's tenth president, Walter T. Cox. To honor President Emeritus and Dean Cox, the university established a scholarship in his name. The scholarship was to be granted to students on the basis of their academic performance and potential.

In addition to the lasting tribute to Dean Cox, a celebration was held on September 5, 1987. The festivities consisted of a public barbecue dinner and program which followed the First Friday football game against Western Carolina. Approximately 500 people attended the dinner, which raised money for the scholarship bearing Dean Cox's name. The dinner raised $50,000 for the fund.

Walter T. Cox graduated from Clemson in 1939 and returned as an Assistant Coach and Athletic Business Manager in 1940. Ten years later he was promoted to Director of Public Relations and Alumni Affairs and Assistant to the president. In 1955, he took the position of Vice-President of Student Affairs, a position he held until July 1985. From July 1985 until March 1985, Cox served as Clemson's tenth president. From July of 1986 until March 1987, he served as Vice President for Institutional Advancement. Cox retired from full-time employment at Clemson on April 30, 1987, but continued to serve the university on a part-time basis as a consultant to President Lennon and the institutional advancement division.

Finished At Last!

Clemson University officially heralded the opening of a new $11.9 million laboratory on April 28, 1987. The Howard L. Hunter Chemistry Laboratory housed a 230 seat auditorium and a main building plans also called for a research wing to be added at a later date.

The building was a valued addition to the Chemistry Department, which was formerly housed in Brackett Hall. The modern facilities benefited most of the university's students, since about half of the seventy-seven bachelor degree programs offered required courses in chemistry.

President Max Lennon acknowledged state taxpayers' support for the new building saying, "Because of their commitment, the opportunities are limitless."

Students also responded positively to the improvement. "They're nicer and their smaller size enables for one class at a time instead of three at a time in one large lab," Roger Donahue said of Chemistry journals and guides were readily accessible in the chemistry library.

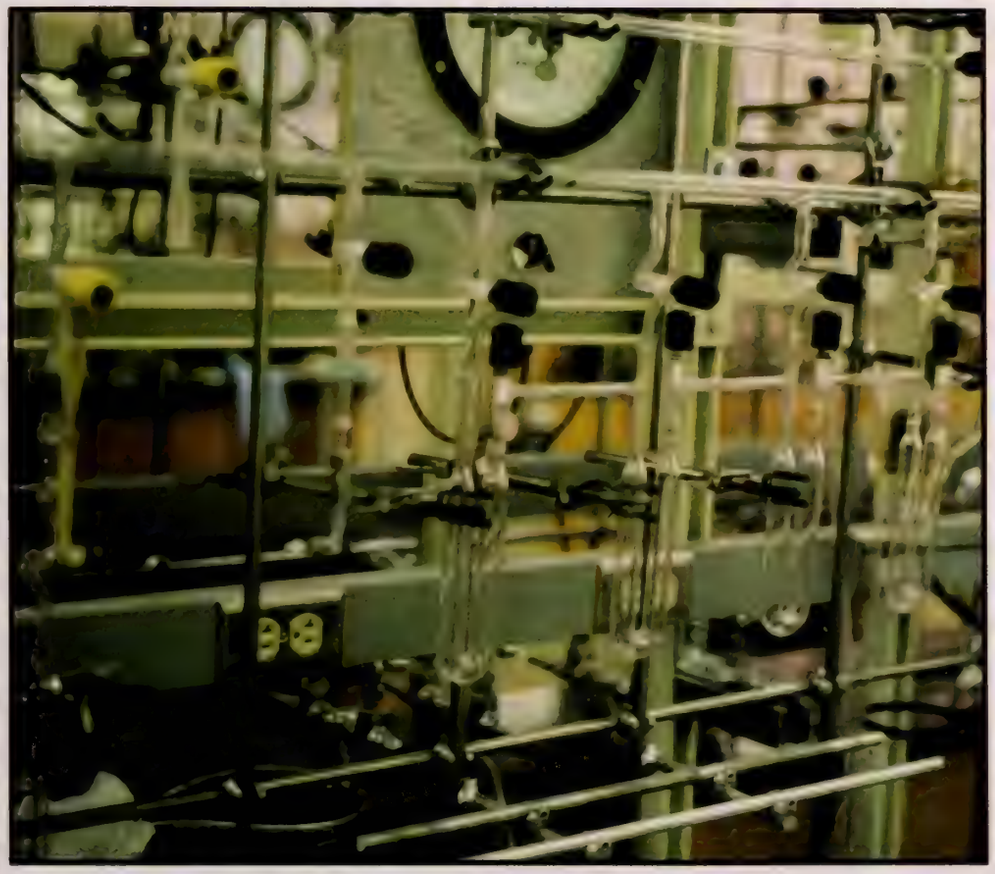
Dr. Desmarteau, Head of the Chemistry Department, finds the new labs are very much to his liking.

As in alot of chemistry labs, these students double check the instructions so they won't blow themselves up!



The new Howard L. Hunter Chemistry Building incorporated a modern look with the 230 seat auditorium and a 97,000-square-foot main laboratory building.

New equipment and facilities with proper ventilation are a welcome change for those dealing with the Chemistry Department.

the modern laboratories.

The building name honored Howard L. Hunter, former dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. Hunter retired in 1969 after forty-one years of service to Clemson University.

The building was dedicated before an audience of over one-hundred people, including members of Hunter's family and nationally known chemists. The dedication was followed by a technical symposium featuring three well-known figures in chemistry.

As Max Lennon indicated, the Howard Hunter Chemistry Laboratory marked the beginning of "exciting times for Clemson and the state."

Tiger Golfers Capture The ACC Title

In his fourth year of coaching Clemson golf, Coach Larry Penley continued to strengthen and improve the university golf program. With a team roster including the return of three starters from the 1986 team and three powerful freshmen, the year was bound to be explosive from the beginning.

Placing second of twenty teams in their first tournament, the Seminole Classic, and winning the next two, the Palmetto Classic and the Gamecock Invitational, the Tiger golfers set a winning precedent at the start of the season. Next came a fifth-place finish at the Homberg Intercollegiate Tournament. It was two more tournaments before the team captured another first-place finish, the coveted ACC Championship. The Tiger golfers then traveled to the Schenkel Invitational where they placed fifth of eighteen teams. The season ended with a trip to the NCAA Tournament, where the Tigers captured eleventh-place among thirty-three teams.

The team, as a whole, improved by recording better statistics than those set in the previous year. Kevin Johnson set a Clemson freshman record for stroke average in 1986 with a 73.74 and lowered his average as a sophomore to 71.88, the lowest on the team. Johnson's leading average beat Brad Clark's lowest team average of 73.32 the preceeding year. Coach Penley said of this aspiring young golfer, "Kevin Johnson is one of the best collegiate golfers in the country. His desire and determination set him apart. He is a real competitor who could excel in any sport."

Collectively, the Tigers shot under par thirty-seven times out of nine tournaments. The team average was 72.46 strokes per round and Kevin Johnson held the low score of the season with a 65. The team had three first-place finishes as a team and had three team members finish first in various tournaments. Chris Patton and Kevin Johnson tied for first-place in the Gamecock Invitational, and Jason Griffith finished first in the Palmetto Classic.

Coach Penley said, "This is the most talented team that I have ever coached."

Clemson Baseball Has Record Season

The Clemson baseball team just keeps getting better. In 1986, the team tied the record for most wins in a season with 42. In 1987, they smashed that record with a 54-14-1 season. It was the first time Clemson has had a 50-win season in any sport.

This year's team was strong in almost all areas. With five fifth-year seniors on the roster, experience was one of the teams greatest strengths. The Clemson offense also proved strong the team had a .320 batting average. In addition, five Tigers made the All-ACC baseball team. Bert Heffernan, Steve Baucom, Bill Spiers and Randy Mazey made first-team All-ACC, and Henry Threadgill made second-team All-ACC. Pitcher Brian Barnes also contributed to Clemson's strength, posting 12 wins — the most by a Tiger in over 10 years.

Even though the team had an all-round great year, two of the highlights had to be the Miami series and the South Carolina series. Against a Top Ten Miami team at Miami, the Tigers won two games and tied the third. Against a highly regarded South Carolina team, the Tigers swept all four games.

The ACC Tournament started off well for the Tigers. The tournament was held in Greenville, South Carolina for the first time, and the support for the Tigers was tremendous. Unfortunately, the support wasn't enough as the Tigers won games against Wake Forest,

The Tigers' season wasn't over yet though, as the team received a bid to the NCAA baseball tournament. The team beat West Virginia, Seton Hall, and Auburn before being eliminated by Arkansas. But the team certainly had nothing to be ashamed of — they finished the season ranked number 10. It was Coach Bill Wilhelm's thirtieth consecutive winning season making him the winningest active coach in the ACC in any sport. Coach Wilhelm should be able to add to that total next year. With several key players returning, including Bert Heffernan and Brian Barnes, the Tigers looked forward to a bright future.

TENNIS

Clemson Netters Continue Success

The men's tennis team continued its success by having it's eleventh consecutive winning season. The schedule pitted Clemson against many of the best college teams in tennis today. The team faced twenty-one teams ranked in the Top 20 over the course of the season. Consequently, none of the team's losses came against unranked teams.

The Tigers played well in several tournaments with their strongest showing at the National ITCA Indoor Championships. The team defeated three ranked teams including number-two Southern Methodist. Unfortunately, the team lost to number-one Southern California in the finals and had to settle for runner-up.

There was no Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament in 1987, but the Tigers were still crowned ACC Champions for the fifth consecutive year. The tournament was cancelled due to inclement weather. Thus on the strength of their 6-0 regular season ACC record, the Tigers were awarded the championship.

The team also made a ninth straight appearance in the NCAA Tournament which was held in Athens, Georgia. The team started off with a strong showing in defeating Kansas by a score of 6-1. The Tigers then faced host Georgia and had to settle for an early trip home.

Individually, several players captured post-season honors. The team placed four members on the All-ACC team and four on the All-American team. The Clemson representatives on both teams were Craig Boynton, Kent Kinnear, and Vince Van-Gelderan. Brian Page also made All-ACC, and John Sullivan gained All-American honors.

The Lady Tigers had a good season by retaining their ACC title and finishing in the nation's Top 20. The team's overall record was 18-13 and 5-1 in the ACC with the only setback coming in a late season loss to North Carolina.

Though the team's overall record may appear somewhat mediocre, one must consider the caliber of the opponents the team played. Of the thirty-one teams the Lady Tigers played, seventeen were ranked in the top 25 at the time of the match. The record is also more impressive in that the team only played eleven matches

One of the highlights of the season was the ACC Tournament which the Lady Tigers won for an unprecedented sixth time. The team defeated Virginia, Duke, and Wake Forest enroute to its title. Two players captured individual championships; they were Ingelise Driehuis and Laurie Stephan. Both players, along with Nicole Stafford and Pam Menne, earned All-ACC honors. In the doubles category, the teams of Stafford-Driehuis and Menne-Stephan were ACC champions. Driehuis was also named the Most Valuable Player in the ACC.

The success of Ingelise Driehuis did not end with her ACC honors. She was named All-American in singles and doubles with her partner Nicole Stafford. Driehaus also had the privilege of being selected to the first-team Academic All-American.

SOCCER

Soccer Season Brings Pleasant Suprise

It was to be rebuilding year for Clemson soccer. You know, one that doesn't really count. In fact the main thing head coach I.M. Ibrahim was thinking about building before the season started was his new 4,000 seat stadium. It was a good recruiting year, but winning would have to take a back seat for a few years, while the young talent improved. However, someone forgot to tell this to senior Bruce Murray. On a team full of freshmen, it was it's elder statesman Murray that made sure the season counted as the Tigers finished 13-5-1 in the regular season and went to the NCAA tournament, where they pulled off upset after upset.

"Bruce Murray is going to be the player that makes us or breaks us," said Ibrahim before the season started. "He's really our best player, but we do have an outstanding group of seniors returning. They are the ones that are going to make this team successful."

Murray had been an All-American since he stepped on the campus four years earlier, and this year he was being touted for the highest honor given to a soccer player, the Herman Award. Murray led the Tigers with 17 goal and eight assists, while the Tigers matured into a national contender.

Injuries kept the Tigers from going to the NCAA tournament the previous year, despite that team's top 20 finish, and the program had fallen behind some of the others in the Southeast such as Duke, South Carolina and North Carolina. "If we have the rash of injuries we had last year, I don't think we will have a decent season," Ibrahim said about the challenge he faced in having to face ACC competition with so many freshmen. But he was not shy about attacking with the ball as he knew the physical competition his team would face during the year. He said that the team would play a high intensity defense which was contrary to most of the players' styles. And, Ibrahim unveiled his team's new style as well as his new stadium with an 8-0 win over UNC-Asheville. The new stadium was something that Ibrahim had wanted for years and when it opened up, it filled to near-capacity. The Tigers then went on to defeat UNC-Greensboro and the College of Charleston in two very challenging contests.

The Tigers then got their first taste of ACC competition in their next match as they faced physical North Carolina. The Tigers took it on the chin against the Tar Heels as goalkeeper Chris Dudley allowed the first two goals of the season for the Tigers in their 2-1- loss. Ibrahim had the officiating to blame as the Tigers squeaked by Georgia State 3-2 in their next contest. The Tigers raised their conference record to 1-1 with a 3-1 win over Wake Forest and then avenged a loss to Furman a year earlier with a 3-1 win over the Paladins in their next contest.

In their next contest against Duke, the Tigers dominated every phase of the game but the scoreboard, as the Blue Devils took a 2-0 victory. After the loss Ibrahim expressed pleasure in the progress that the team had been making despite the loss. The Tigers made good on their chances to score in their next two matches against St. Louis and George Mason in the Umbro Invitational Tournament. The Tigers defeated St. Louis 5-1 and dispatched George Mason 2-0 to win the tournament and get rid of some of the frustration that had been haunting them throughout the season. However, the team would not see many more easy wins. In their next match against Berry College they won 1-0 despite outshooting Berry 23-4 and having three shots hit off the goal.

Probably the highlight of the season was when the tigers knocked off the second-ranked Gamecocks of USC 2-1 on Riggs Field in front of over 6,000 fans. "I have a bottle of Dom Perrignon, and it has been chilling the entire year," Ibrahim said after watching his team imporve to 10-2 on the year. "And I assure you I will open it tonight."

After a 2-1 win over Coastal Carolina in their next match, the Tigers faced N.C. State with an NCAA bid in the balance. The Tigers tied the Wolfpack 2-2 to keep their hopes for a bid alive, and Ibrahim just hoped that his Tigers could hang on to receive an invitation to the tournament after suffering numerous injuries in recent matches. Ibrahim was finally given a night he could relax in the Tigers' next match against Erskine. The Tigers defeated the Flying Fleet 5-0, and the big win could not have come sooner for Ibrahim. "We got tired of those Wednesday night squeakers that go all the way down to the wire," Ibrahim said.

The Tigers then fell on hard times as they lost their final two regular season ACC matches to Maryland and Virginia. The losses were sandwiched around a 3-0 win over Presbyterian College. The Tigers were given a bid despite their 13-5-1 record.

The rebuilding year that Ibrahim had expected turned into a year that added to the Tigers' reputation as a national power. The season was certainly one that will be remembered for some time to come for its close finishes along with the results that went along with the close finishes that were usually in the youthful Tigers' favor.

Soccer Team Defeats San Diego State For National Championship

It was to be a year of rebuilding for the Clemson soccer team. Coach I.M. Ibrahim dreamed of much but "realistically" expected less than that as he faced a season with his youngest team ever. There were times during the season when the coach and his team doubted that they would even get a bid to play in the NCAA tournament. They had a disappointing 1-5-1 record in the ACC and lost to UNC in the first round of the ACC tournament. But the Tigers were given the benefit of the doubt and won one of the last two spots given in the tournament. San Diego State won the other one.

In the first round of the tournament Hermann Award winner Bruce Murray kicked in the winning goal from 35 yards away to lead Clemson to a 2-1 win over Evansville. Evansville coach Fred Schmalz called Murray's kick "the best free kick I've ever seen in college soccer." The team then went on to dethrone top-ranked Indiana 2-1. Murray kicked his second winning goal of the tournament to lead the Tigers. Clemson's next victim was Rutgers. Murray scored two second half goals to set up the 3-2 win.

Clemson was chosen to host the final four, where they would face UNC in the semifinals. The Tarheels had beaten them twice during the regular season, but, this time the Tigers totally dominated and beat the Tarheels 4-1 in front of a crowd of 6,000 people. The Tigers had now beaten four top-twenty teams on their march to the final game. And now they faced San Diego State. The last two teams chosen for the NCAA tournament were about to do battle for the top spot in college soccer.

The Tigers came into the game determined to accomplish what was thought to be impossible. At one point, they held SDSU without a shot for 36 minutes. They were in control throughout the game, as Paul Rutenis and Richie Richmon each scored to give the Tigers a 2-0 win in front of a crowd of more than 8,000 fans. It was a very proud moment for Coach Ibrahim, as his young team had skillfully crafted themselves into what no one believed they could be anytime soon ... a national championship team. So much for a season of rebuilding.

FOOTBALL

Rollercoaster Year On The Gridiron

For a season that was predicted to bring so much joy, it brought so much pain. For a year that was supposed to bring so much success, it brought relatively few wins. It was nine wins to be exact, the most by a Clemson football team since 1983. The wins came by big margins and they came by small margins, mostly small. Late drives were the rule, and David Treadwell was the man most looked at when the final minutes were ticking away. The offense would be a sore spot, as Ford had made clear before the season started. But when he was complaining about the offense as they prepared for South Carolina in late November, he did so with only one loss against him. And he knew that as unimpressive as his offense was at times, his defense was just as spectacular, having much to do with most of the Tigers' wins. The defense was dominant in the Tigers' first victory over Western Carolina as they defeated the Catamounts 43-0. They limited Western Carolina to only 105 total yards. And an impressive showing by two freshmen and a first-year runningback at the tailback slot topped off the day for Ford. Wesley McFadden a sophomore in his first game at tailback rushed for 64 yards, while freshmen Joe Henderson and Terry Allen ran for 80 yards and 76 yards, respectively. Each of them also had a touchdown in the Tigers' victory.

McFadden rushed for 226 yards including touchdown runs of 44 and 89 yards the next week to lead the Tigers to a 22-10 win over Virginia Tech. However, it was the defense that stole the spotlight from McFadden as they limited Tech to 60 total yards in a game that was sweet revenge for the Tigers after the Hokies had embarrased them the previous year in Death Valley. The win set up a showdown the next week in Death Valley between the Tigers and Georgia. The game would be the last between the two schools until 1990, and neither team wanted to think about losing this game for that long. After David Treadwell had kicked a 46-yard field goal in 1986 to win the game for the Tigers, there was surely no way the game could get any more tenseful or exciting. But then the defense stepped into the picture and decided to creat a big finish. So they nailed Bulldog quarterback James Jackson for a safety with 5:38 left in the game to bring the Tigers within two points at 20-18, and forced a free kick. The offense proceeded to drive the ball 53 yards in nine plays to set up a Treadwell fieldgoal from 21 yards with two seconds left to win the game 21-20. "I'm very happy for our football team, and I think we were very fortunate to win," said Ford. "But we found a way to win, whether it was one point, half a point . . . I don't even know what the score was."

Danny Ford spent much of the season looking for the BIG wins.

The Tiger defense continued to ignite the team in their next game against Georgia Tech. The Yellow Jackets came into the game boasting one of the top passing attacks in the ACC, but when they left Death Valley, they barely had their pride intact after a 33-12 shellacking by the Tigers. The Yellow Jackets were limited to only 41 yards on the ground and 160 yards in the air while Tech quarterback Rick Strom was sacked six times. Donnell Woolford returned a punt 78 yards in the first quarter for a touchdown and Joe Henderson returned a kickoff 95 yards for a score in the third quarter. The Tigers totalled 227 yards in punt returns to set a new team record.

The offense finally had their day in the sun in the Tigers' next game against Virginia, as they had scoring drives of 80, 76, 76, and 74 yards in 38-21 win over the Cavaliers. Allen rushed for 183 yards and McFadden had 119 as the Tigers put the ball in the endzone on three of their first four possesions.

The offense scored on two long drives despite not getting anything else all afternoon to defeat Duke 17-10 in the next game. The game was tied 10-10 with just over 11 minutes left in the game, and the Tigers had the ball on their own 3-yard line. But the offense then proceeded to march 97 yards on their most impressive drive of the day for the winning touchdown.

The Tigers' lackluster play finally caught up with them in their next game as they went down 30-0 in the first half to N.C. State and could not quite come back, as they ended up losing 30-28. Rodney Williams threw an NCAA record 46 passes in the second half as they attempted a miracle comeback, but in the end, all hopes for a national championship were vanquished. The Tigers played their hearts out in the second half. However, their 28 points were too little too late against a team that would lose to East Tennessee State University two weeks later.

The next week on Halloween, Wake Forest jumped out to a 17-10 halftime lead, holding the Tigers to a field goal and punt return for a touchdown by Donnell Woolford. But, Rodney Williams came in in the second half after Chris Morocco had started the first half and lead the Tigers to three second half touchdowns to give them a 31-17 win.

The win set up a showdown between the Tigers and UNC for the ACC championship. Once again, it was Treadwell who made the day for the Tigers. He hit a 30-yard field goal with 30 seconds left to give the Tigers a 13-10 win. The Tigers clinched the ACC title and a Citrus Bowl bid with a 45-16 pelting of Maryland the next week in Death Valley. It was complete domination, from the 355 yards rushing to the two long touchdown passes from Williams to Gary Cooper. There was no doubt the Tigers had put it all together.

Early in the second half, most of the Tigers' thought turned to their next opponent, South Carolina. The Gamecocks came into the game with a 7-2 record. The Tigers scored on their first possesion with a 91 yard drive, but they were shut out for the rest of the game. Carolina scored on a pair of field goals, an offensive touchdown and a intercepted pass return for a touchdown. The loss ended what was to be a magical season for the Tigers at 9-2. The high hopes of the preseason were dashed at the N.C. State game and pounded into the ground in Columbia. "We're thankful that we have an opportunity to end the season on a different note," Ford said after the game as he accepted the invitation to play in the Citrus Bowl. "I thought that our guys played very well this season in that we're 9-2. We didn't accomplish everything that we wanted to accomplish, but we have nothing to be ashamed of."

It was the magic that fans, coaches, and players had anxiously awaited all season. But it really only seemed like magic on New Year's Day for the Tigers. What it really boiled down to was a solid game plan and the excellent talent to execute it. After having a month to think about their disappointing loss to South Carolina, the Tigers charged onto the field for the 42nd Citrus Bowl game and stunned the crowd of over 53,000 fans. The Tigers took control of the game from the beginning and handed the Penn State Nittany Lions a 35-10 loss, PSU head coach Joe Paterno's worst bowl defeat ever.

Paterno had voiced his concern over Clemson's kick return ability; his concerns were legitimate. On the opening kickoff, Clemson's Wesley McFadden returned the ball 42 yards to the Clemson 44-yard line. Then the Tigers did what no one ever dreamed they would do. On the first play from scrimmage, quarterback Rodney Williams dropped back and threw his first pass of the game to Keith Jennings for a 34-yard gain. Seven plays later, Tracy Johnson took it in from seven yards out for Clemson's first touchdown. David Treadwell added the extra point to give Clemson a 7-0 lead.

The score remained unchanged until early in the second quarter when Penn State was given good field position by a 36-yard punt return. An interception by Donnell Woolford was nullified by an offsides penalty against Clemson, giving Penn State the opportunity to tie the game on a 39-yard pass to Michael Alexander from Matt Knizer. But the Tigers quickly answered with a 72-yard drive that took only eight plays. Terry Allen had a 31-yard run, and Williams found Jennings for a 31-yard pass play to help set up the score. Johnson capped it off again with a six yard touchdown run. Treadwell connected to make it 14-7 in Clemson's favor.

Penn State opened the second half with a 28-yard Eric Etze field goal. But Clemson answered quickly again with a 70-yard touchdown drive. The drive was highlighted by a 23-yard pass from Williams to Gary Cooper and a 22-yard run by Alen that carried the ball to the PSU 8-yard line. Johnson went in for the touchdown from the 1-yard line, giving Clemson a 21-10 lead. Johnson rushed for 88 yards in the game, and his three touchdowns set a new school record.

Moments later, Clemson linebacker Dorian Mariable intercepted a PSU pass at the Clemson goal line and returned it 46 yards. That was the fourth and last time in the game that PSU penetrated the CU ten-yard line. Twice they scored and twice they turned the ball over. Mariable's interception coupled with Tony Stephens' recovery of a PSU fumble at the CU nine-yard line cost Penn State two possible scores. Mariable's interception won him the defensive MVP award of the game.

Clemson scored again on a 26-yard run by Allen, who ran for a total of 105 yards. Allen's score and Treadwell's extra point gave Clemson a

The Tigers played a near perfect game and were led by Rodney Williams' superb passing game. Williams completed 15 of 24 passes for 214 yards. He was named MVP of the Citrus Bowl for his performance. The game was what the Tigers had searched for all season, and it certainly pleased head coach Danny Ford. "We happened to have the hot hand today," said Ford. "We played very, very well. Clemson Hosts the ACC Volleyball Tournament

N.C. State Takes Top Honors

Clemson University hosted the ACC Volleyball Tournament November 20-22, 1987. Clemson was eliminated on Friday by Virginia by scores of 15-5, 15-5, and 15-10. Advancing to the semifinals on Saturday were Duke, who beat UNC, and NCSU, who beat Virginia. On Sunday, NCSU defeated Duke to win the championship. NCSU coach Judy Martino was named the ACC Volleyball coach of the year. And, among those named to the ACC First Team was Clemson's Wendy Anderson.

TAPS Salutes Banks McFadden

Banks McFadden stands beside his retired jerseys, as he expresses his appreciation for such a great honor.

Clemson University has always had a tradition of excellence in sports. In the 1986-87 school year, Clemson captured seven ACC crowns and had 10 Top 20 national finishes. Thousands of very dedicated athletes have represented Clemson well in its history. And, several of those athletes have made exceptional efforts to make Clemson the best in college sports. So, to honor such athletes, the university may elect to retire their jerseys, which means that those jersey numbers will never be worn again by any other player in the future. On September 19, 1987, at the pregame ceremonies of the Georgia football game, Clemson University proudly honored former Tiger All-American Banks McFadden by retiring not only one but two of his jerseys. Banks McFadden was a football, basketball and track star when he attended Clemson. He was named the nation's most versatile athlete for 1939-40, after having won All-American honors in both football and basketball in 1939. He is the only person in Clemson's history to be named All-American in two sports in the same calendar year. As a track team member, he lead the team to a state championship. McFadden wore football jersey number 66 and basketball jersey number 23. He is only the fourth person in Clemson's history to have his or her jersey retired. The jerseys of basketball greats Tree Rollins and Barbara Kennedy and football great Steve Fuller have also been retired. According to the Clemson Athletic Council, in order for consideration to be given to the retirement of an athlete's jersey, the athlete must be a Clemson graduate of at least five years who has had a substantial impact on the sports program and who has brought national/international attention to Clemson. He or she must have demonstrated leadership abilities and have had the respect of his or her teammates.

In honor of his tremendous achievements and efforts that have helped in creating a tradition of athletic excellence at Clemson University, the 1988 TAPS staff salutes Banks McFadden.

Tennis and Soccer Facilities See Million Dollar Improvements

The past year produced some definite improvements in two of Clemson's athletic facilities. The two sports which received the largest amount of attention were tennis and soccer. Both of these areas have been in need of improvements for some time.

The new indoor tennis center will definitely aid Clemson in both recruiting and bringing top-ranked teams from across the country to have matches here. The center will also help the players by allowing them to practice year-round and during inclement weather.

The tennis center cost approximately $1.04 million and was funded through IPTAY and the athletic department. The center contains four tennis courts with divider curtains. There are also offices for both the mens' and womens' coaches, as well as an equipment room. Restrooms and a canteen are also available for use during soccer games. All together, the tennis center provides Clemson with a top-notch facility which will undoubtedly help the Tigers remain with the country's most elite in college tennis.

The soccer field also experienced some dramatic improvements. The most significant change was the construction of a permanent 4,000 seat stadium, which is the second largest in the ACC. At a cost of $1.1 million, the soccer stadium features a press box, lights for night games, and locker rooms for both teams. A new $60,000 scoreboard was also installed, as well as a picnic area across from the stadium for tailgating.

TRACK

Track Has Record-Setting Season

The men's track team had a fantastic season as the 1986-87 Tigers set twenty-one Clemson track bests. Most of these were set at either the Florida State University-Tenneco Relays or at the South Carolina State Meet. The Tigers also placed first in the ACC in indoor track and second in outdoor track.

The Florida State University-Tenneco Relays were held on March 21, 1987, and the Tigers ran well. Ten school records were set — including one by Terrance Herrington in the 800 meters which qualified him for the National Collegiate Athletic Association Outdoor Meet. Several others Tigers also set records — Delton Hall, John Everett,George Milton, and Larry Clark.

At the South Carolina State Meet held in April, the Tigers turned in another fine performance. Although they finished second by eight points to the University of South Carolina, the team set twelve Clemson school records. Records were set by Shelton Boyer, Marcus Black, Terrance Herrington, George Milton, and John Boobas. Additional records were set by Frank Crossen, Mike Spiritoso, Darwin Rencher, and Shawn Parker.

The women's track team also had a good year. The Lady Tigers had several top performers that spring. Michelle Kalikan ran a school record 17:05 in the 5000 meter run at the Dogwood Relays. Teammates Elsa Breit and Jeannie Burris also set records. Breit set records in the 1500 meters and 800 meters while Burris set records in the discus and shotput.

CROSS COUNTRY

Success In The Making

In keeping with recent tradition, the Clemson University Cross-Country teams enjoyed much success in 1987. The Lady Tigers competed in four season meets in addition to the ACC Championships. They began the season with their finest performance at the Georgia State Invitational where they finished in first place. Michelle Kalikin lead the team with an individual second place finish. In early October the team travelled to the Stanford/ Holiday Inn Invitational in California, where they placed second among fifteen teams. Kalikin and Kris Salt ran well for the Tigers in that meet.

At the Furman Invitational in Greenville, S.C., Ute Jamrozy, Helen Rogers, and Michelle Scholtz finished fourth, sixth, and tenth, respectively. The Virginia Invitational was another fine performance for the Lady Tigers, as they finished third among twenty-five teams. Kalikin, Salt, Jamrozy, and Marsha Grondziak led the team with good individual finishes. Finally, the Lady Tigers finished in third place at the ACC CHampionships in Atlanta with strong performances by Kalikin, Salt, and Rogers. Overall, the Lady Tigers finished the season with one first place, two third places, and one sixth place finish in four team meets.

The men's team also had an excellent season. They finished in first place in all four meets. They took first at the Georgia State Invitational and had Larry Clark and Henrik Skov, Clark, McCaffrey and Shawn Britton also finished in the top ten individually.

Along with Yehzkel Halifa, Kremer, Clark, McCaffrey, and Skov all finished in the top seven at the Vanderbilt Invitational to pace the Tigers to a win over fourteenth ranked Western Kentucky. Kremer broke the course record with a time of 24:13. Finally, the men turned in a brilliant performance at the ACC Championships in Atlanta. They won the title for the sixth time in school history. The team was lead with top ten finishes by Halifa, Clark, Kremer, and Skov, who all went on to win All-ACC honors for their performances. Coach Bill Cason was also voted the ACC Men's "Coach of the Year" after the team's victory.

Fike Continues To Offer An Excellent Intramural Program

Students have always sought means by which to vent frustrations brought on by the pressures of the classroom. Clemson's own Fike Recreation Center has always been many students' favorite place to work out, relax in the sauna, or to participate in a little friendly competition. Besides weights, raquetball, aerobics, swimming, and other indoor sports programs, Fike continued to provide an excellent intramural program in the 1987-88 school year that offered something for every student. For those students who chose not to play a sport, there was the chance to be a field manager or an official.

At least sixteen different intramural sports were played, ranging from football to ultimate frisbee to water polo. Sports were offered in five divisions, including freshmen, upperclassmen, women, fraternity, and graduate. And there was a co-rec division in most sports, which proved to be very popular among many different campus organizations.

For many people, intramurals was just something fun to do with friends. But, for others it was a neverending blood battle in quest of a coveted "Intramural Champion" t-shirt. Nevertheless, intramural sports proved to be a fun way to meet new people and to take much needed study breaks.

EQUESTRIAN

Equestrian Team Wins Top Honors

Many opportunities for students to compete in various sports were available at Clemson University, but a unique one that offered the possibility of competing on the national level was the Clemson University Equestrian team. Sponsored by the Block and Bridle Club, the team competed in a region which included the College of Charleston, University of Georgia, University of South Carolina, University of Florida, Converse College, and St. Andrews Presbyterian College.

Though most of the teams received funding for lessons, had practice requirements for their members, and several even had horses for use by their riders, the Clemson team riders were responsible for their own instruction and many did not even get to ride except at the shows. In spite of these disadvantages, the team qualified four riders in five classes for the Regional competition last season. Of the four that qualified, all won their classes and advanced to the National Intercollegiate Show in Indianapolis, Indiana, where Sally Ford won a second and fourth in her two classes. Carol Anne Buteil placed sixth, and Lisa Crouch and Krista Harrelson also put in fine performances.

Intercollegiate competition offered both Stockseat and Huntseat divisions and had levels ranging from Walk-trot for the beginner to the Open division for riders experienced enough to compete on the national level in other horse organizations' shows. While Stockseat was only shown "on the flat," huntseat riders could compete both "on the flat" and "over fences," which ranged in height and width as much as three feet six inches.

What was probably the greatest challenge of showing intercollegiately was the fact that riders rode a horse that they had never ridden before and were given no practice time before they went into the ring to be judged. The riders' only chances to know what to expect of his or her mount were watching the horse being warmed up before the show and reading a very brief description of the horse in the program. Horses were assigned to riders by a random draw in order to be as fair as possible.

With many new riders and the talent of returning competitors, the Clemson Equestrian team hoped to have another season of excellence by sending many of its riders on to compete at the regional and national levels.

RACING

High Speed Fun

Imagine the thrill of travelling at speeds of 100 miles per hour or more in a powerful sports car, racing against the clock or other drivers that are equally obsessed with travelling at speeds close to the speed of light. Car racing is a popular sport all over the world as well as at Clemson University. The Clemson Sports Car Club is a club open to those with an enthusiastic intrest in sports cars and different types of car racing.

Under the leadership of advisor Ken Wagner, the club participated in many different events throughout the year. The club met twice a month. One meeting was reserved for conducting club business, and the other meeting was reserved for entertainment, which usually consisted of either watching videos of past races or hearing guest speakers. Club members also participated in road rallies and worked as corner workers in road races.

The club held four autocrosses at Clemson and invited members of other sports car clubs from Augusta, Greenville, and Atlanta to attend. The autocrosses were timed races of individual drivers around a small intricate course. The courses were designed for speeds not to be much more than 40 miles per hour.

The Chimney Rock Hillclimb was held in the spring at Chimney Rock and was a very popular event. Drivers raced up the hill one at a time, competing for the best time. Although most club members could not actually compete in the race, they were able to be around the drivers and cars by being corner workers.

Because of the expense, most students could not afford to own and race a car of their own. But, the Clemson Sports Car Club gave many students a chance to participate in many auto racing activities without having to worry about the cost. The club proved to be a fun way for many students to enjoy their favorite sport.

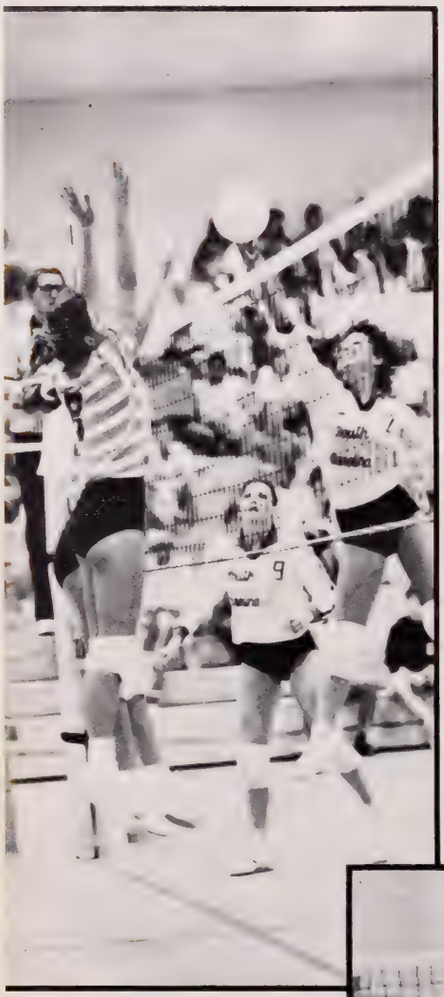
VOLLEYBALL



Lady Tigers Have Record Season

"The 1987 edition of Clemson's Lady Tiger volleyball team continued the winning ways of last year's record setting squad by tying the 1982 school record for most wins in the ACC." These were the words of Head Coach Linda White who had nothing but praise for this year's team. The Lady Tigers finished the regular season with a 21-15 record. This marks the second time in as many years that the team has surpassed twenty wins in a season.

The Lady Tigers started off the season with a win over Western Carolina. The team placed third in the Coca-Cola Classic in Washington, D.C. and third again in the Coors/Coors Light Classic in Illinois. In the last regular season tournament the Lady Blazen Invitational, the Tigers finished third again. The team then lost to Georgia before starting the ACC season. One of the highlights of 1987 had to be travelling to Maryland and winning the first ACC match of the season. It was the first time the Lady Tigers had beaten Maryland since 1981, so the win was especially gratifying to the seniors. The team then defeated Virginia and Georgia Tech before losing to the University of North Carolina, Duke, and N.C. State to finish the ACC with a 3-3 record.

Besides having a great team record, this year's Lady Tigers set several individual records as well. Leading the attack for the Tigers were seniors Cindy Tucci and Joy Fleming. Together, they held four career records for the Tigers. Cindy held the record for set assists and Joy held the record for service aces, block solos, and block assists. In addition, Joy and Chris Sherman both surpassed 1000 defensive saves. Junior Wendy Anderson recieved All-Tournament Honors in all three regular season tournaments. Both Wendy and Chris Sherman were named ACC Players of the Week during the season. With four outstanding freshmen as well as several returning players, Clemson was expected to do well in the upcoming season.

SWIMMING

Swimmers Enjoy Success

When the swimming season began Head Coach Bob Boettner expected many great things from both of his teams. The Lady Tigers finished 5th in the NCAA tournament in the previous season and had seven All-Americans or honorable mention All-Americans returning for the 1987-88 season. Coach Boettner could not be disappointed. The opening meet for the Lady Tigers began a winning streak that would go on to prove how strong a national contender the women's squad was. Led by All-American Pam Hayden, the Tigers dominated the Virginia Cavaliers and won 165-103. Hayden won the 200-meter freestyle and fly events and the 500-meter freestyle, and Jill Bakehorn won the 100 and 200-meter backstroke and the 200-meter individual medley. One day later, Hayden led the team to its second victory of the season over Virginia Tech.

After an impressive first place finish in the Clemson Intercollegiate Invitational, the Tigers faced Furman. Jan Kemmerling won two swimming events, and Mandy Meek won both diving events to pace the women to a 140-64 win over the Paladins. Ranked fifth nationally, the Lady Tigers went on to win several more meets by very impressive margins. Ruth Grodsky set two season best times in the 100- and 200-meter breaststroke and Hayden set a season best in the 100-meter freestyle, as the Lady Tigers beat UNC 164-100. Hayden led the team again in a win over Wisconsin-Stevens Point. Maryland and N.C. State were the Lady Tigers' next victims. Mitzi Kremer came back in this meet after a shoulder injury to win the 200- and 500-yard freestyle events, leading the Tigers to a 166-90 win over the Terrapins. Kremer swam well against N.C. State, where she won the 100- and 1,000-yard freestyle events. Freshman Denise Coniglio swam a 2:02.87 in the 200-yard backstroke, qualifying herself for both the NCAA championships and the Olympic trials. The Lady Tigers went to on to defeat the Wolfpack 163-104. The women then faced 13th-ranked South Carolina. Kemmerling, Hayden, Bakehorn, and Grodsky each recorded wins that helped pace the team to a 150-116 victory over the Gamecocks.

The men faced the ACC defending champion Virginia in their opening meet. Davey Stevens won the 200-meter individual medley and Dave Hrovat won the 1- and 3-meter springboard events, but the Tigers were not able to overcome Virginia and lost by a score of 131-86. The Tigers regained their confidence the next day against Virginia Tech. Led by Stevens, who had three first place finishes, and Mark Bridgers, who had two victories, the Tigers won the meet 62-40. The men went on to place first in the Clemson Intercollegiate and second in the Tennessee Relays.

Their next match was against Furman. Mark Weber won two freestyle events and Dave Hrovat won both diving events to give the men a 133-65 win. Despite season — best performances by Weber and Brett Jones against North Carolina, the Tigers could not overcome the Tar Heels and lost the meet 87.5-129.5. Jose Tarrio gave a fine performance in the next meet to pace the team past Wisconsin-Stevens Point. The win gave the team a 3-2 overall record and a 0-2 record in the ACC. The team then went on to win two close meets against Maryland and N.C.State that raised their record to 5-2 overall and 2-2 in the ACC. Weber and Tarrio, along with the freestyle relay team of Steve Patnode, Steve Helderman, Weber, and Bridgers helped clinch a 116-99 win over the Terps. The freestyle relay team of Patnode, Weber, Bridgers, and Stevens won the last race of the day to give the Tigers a 111-104 victory over the Wolfpack. One week later, the 22nd-ranked Tigers dropped a meet against USC despite the fine performances of Weber, Jones, and Tarrio.

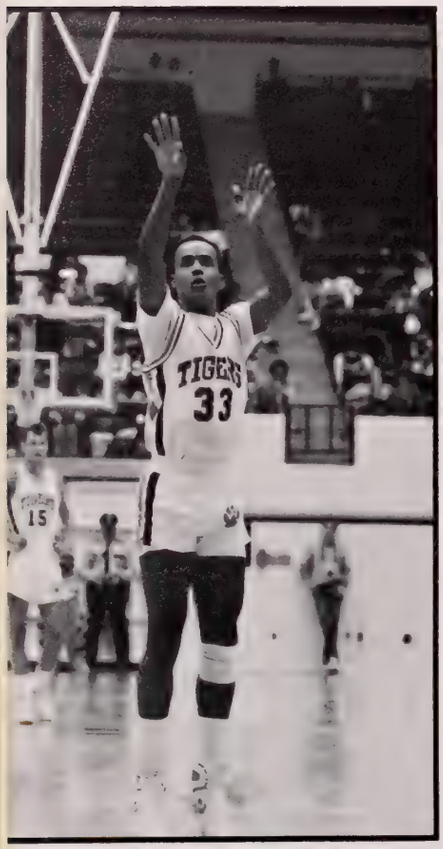
Tiger Teams Undergo Transitions



All photos by Srivaths Srinivasan

What a difference a year made! Last year Clemson basketball had its best season ever at 25-6, but this year the team barely had half that many, finishing the season with a 14-13 record.

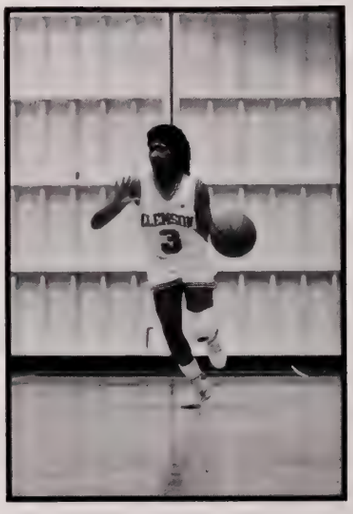
The major reason for this year's disappointing season was youth, which the Tigers had in abundance. This years' team had only one senior and one junior. In addition, the team also had various off-the-court problems. Before the season began, the Tigers lost guards Michael Tait to hardship and Michael Brown to disciplinary reasons. A few games into the season, guard Chris Duncan left the team for personal reasons, with walk-on Chris Boozer quitting soon after. Donnell Bruce broke his hand and missed several games, and, late in the season, Sean Tyson and Elden Campbell were suspended for violating NCAA rules.

Being the only senior on the team, Grayson Marshall provided leadership on the team. Marshall was also counted on to handle the ball in most game situations, especially close ones. While Grayson had been a leader for the past few years, this year he also became one of the best assist men in college basketball. During the year's first meeting with Georgia Tech, Grayson became the all-time ACC career assist leader, breaking Tyrone Bogues record of 781.

Even though the Tigers suffered through injuries and adversity at the guard position, the frontcourt consisting of Elden Campbell, Jerry Pryor, and Dale Davis played consistently well. Campbell was second on Clemson's all-time blocked shots list and had a good chance of breaking Tree Rollin's record of 450. He was also Clemson's leading scorer and rebounder this season.

Jerry Pryor exhibited strong rebounding skills on both the offensive and defensive ends of the court, while Dale Davis was first among freshman in rebounding and led the team with 23 points in the upset win over Duke.

The Tigers started the season halfway around the world in Taiwan with two exhibition games against the Taipei All-Stars and a regular season win over Oregon State. Unfortunately, the Tigers didn't maintain that momentum throughout the season. Despite some relatively easy victories over Baptist, Townson State, Mercer, and Coastal Carolina, the Tigers also played some tough competition in Southern Mississippi, Michigan, and, of course, the ACC.



Renee Williams brings the ball downcourt for the Tigers.

The 88-85 loss to Southern Mississippi was the first home-court loss to a non-conference opponent in 33 games. The Tigers rebounded with a win over Augusta before losing again to a top-twenty Michigan team, 93-88. After an easy win over Florida International, the Tigers got ready to attack the conference. Unfortunately, the conference was ready for them, as the Tigers lost their first three games in a span of five days. Inexperience proved to be their downfall. Against N.C. State, they blew a 10 point lead late in the game, and, against Virginia, they allowed John Johnson to score the winning lay-up with one second left.

The team then returned home to start a four game winning streak, starting with an 83-48 victory over Rider. The Tigers then scored their first ACC victory by defeating Wake Forest 75-62. Next came the in-state rivalries. Clemson emerged victorious over Furman and South Carolina, which according to Cliff Ellis was "the Tigers' second best game of the season."

The next game was a trip to Atlanta to play Georgia Tech, and while Grayson Marshall broke the ACC assist record, it was not enough, as the Tigers started a six-game losing streak. After the Yellow Jackets, they proceeded to lose to Duke, UNC, South Carolina, and N.C. State before snapping out of it with a 65-62 last second win over Virginia. Wake Forest then avenged its earlier loss to Clemson by claiming a 79-73 victory. The second meeting with UNC proved to be similar th the first, with the Tar Heels claiming an 86-53 victory. Next came the Duke game at home, where the Tigers pulled off their biggest upset of the year with a 79-77 win. The Tigers finished the regular season with a double overtime 79-76 win over Georgia Tech.

First year head coach Jim Davis began the season with the Lady Tigers full of optimism. And, his optimism became reality. He took the 7-21 record from the previous season and almost literally turned those numbers around for this season's record of 20-7. But the returning talent was the key to the team's success. In his first year, Davis enjoyed having nine letter winners from last season, two Kodak Junior College All-Americans, and an honorable mention prep All-American.

When Coach Davis took his team to the court for the first time, they won, and, they kept on winnning. In fact they won eight of their first ten games. The season began on the road at the Georgia Southern Thanksgiving Tournament, where the Tigers defeated Southern Mississippi and Georgia Southern to win their first regular season tournament since the 1984-85 season. Louise Greenwood was named the MVP of the tournament, and teammates Michelle Bryant and Susan Fehling were named to the all-tournament team. Led by the scoring of Karen Jenkins, Cheryl Nix, and Michelle Bryant, the team went on to beat S.C. State, N.C. State, UNCC, and Southern Alabama before losing a close one to New Orleans.

The Tigers resumed action after Christmas with a big win over Boston University. Jenkins contributed 20 points in the win, and Louise Greenwood had 10 rebounds. But, the Tigers came up short against unbeaten and ninth-ranked Duke and lost 68-61. The next three matches were ACC games. Bryants' scoring efforts helped lead the team to its second win over N.C. State, but the team then dropped games to Maryland and Wake Forest, giving them an ACC record of 2-3.

The team regained their confidence in their next six games and recorded big wins against Radford, North Carolina, and Georgia. The next contest was against USC. The Tigers won it 62-60 on Ramona O'Neal's free throws in the final seconds of the game. The Tigers then avenged its loss to Duke from earlier in the season with a decisive 78-65 victory over the Blue Devils. The ladies defeated Georgia Tech in its next game but then lost to

The team finished the season with and 8-6 record in ACC play and went on to place fourth seed in the ACC tournament. LACROSSE

Lacrosse Causes Bruises

Joel did write us a nice Lacrosse article, but you know how computers are. It disappeared into the computer. Joel was not available and we do not know anything about Lacrosse. I saw the game against Georgia. There were 10 guys out there in orange outfits. Uniforms they were not, but that did not damped their enthusiasm to play. After all it is the people in the uniforms that make the team. So, they were out there whopping the Georgia boys with their sticks (We do not know the name for them, sorry) trying to get the ball. I left at half-time; I think we lost. But this past weekend we won a game 15-4 — way to go guys. Lacrosse reminds us of hockey and rugby combined.

This is another exciting action photo where we don't know what's goin on. You should go out and see a game, then you can learn about it and write captions for us.

WRESTLING

Wrestling Has Successful Season

The Clemson wrestling team opened its season looking for an improvement over its previous record of 8-7. The Tigers finished November and December on a promising note with a 2-1 record, winning against the Citadel and Oregon State and losing to Minnesota. But, when the season resumed in January, the team was plagued with the injuries of Kurt Howell, John Sarnese, and Tom Salisbury. Using a makeshift lineup, the Tigers recorded impressive victories against Olivet and Kent State in a doubleheader, increasing their record to 4-1. The next match against Virginia opened up the ACC season for the Tigers. The Tigers built an early lead and held on to win after a strong comeback in the last three matches by Virginia. Clemson's next three matches included a win over BYU and losses to Oklahoma State and Nebraska.

The Tigers then split a pair of ACC matches. The day after the Tigers' pounding of Duke, North Carolina handed them their first ACC loss. Clemson improved its record to 8-4 by winning its next match against UT-Chattanooga.

Organizations Day 1987

Michael J. Morga

During the first week of September, the Student Government devoted a day in which all recognized campus organizations united to continue the tradition of Organizations Day.

This annual event was informally and conveniently held along the Senior Walk-way between Tillman and Riggs Halls. The participating organizations introduced the many opportunities that were available to the new and continuing students. Organizations ranging from the Clemson University Rodeo Club to the Microbiology Club each talked to inquisitive students, demonstrated their skills, and recruited new members.

With the great response from all participating organizations and the support of the student body, Organizations Day 1987 was a huge success!!

Student Government

The primary purpose of Clemson's Student Government was to serve students and they accomplished that in a number of different ways.

First, Student Government placed many Clemson students on University committees and commissions. These committees and commissions were policy-making bodies and by having student representation, the communication gap between students and administration was eliminated.

Student Government also sponsored activities such as Expo — a career day exposition with over 50 company representatives; Organizations Day — an opportunity for all organizations to present themselves to the student body; Homecoming Pageant, Leadership Conference, an Olympic fundraiser and many other events.

Student government served the students in other ways too. They provided all of the copiers found on campus, the shuttles to and from the student parking lots and the rental refrigerators available to students.

Besides all this, Student Government provided students the opportunity to become involved in many activities. This involvement helped students develop their inter-personal communication skills and prepared them for life after college.

GREEK DAY

This year's Greek Day was a highlight for Greeks. A variety of annual Interfraternity Council events such as Tigerama skits, Homecoming displays, intramural sports, and academics throughout the year lead up to Greek Week during the Spring semester.

During Greek Week the fraternity brothers gathered with spirit and competition for the events which culminate the entire year. Enthusiasm mounted throughout the week as the fraternities harmonized in Greek Sing and on Greek Day for the deciding games. Greeks competed in such events as the Izzy Dizzy relay, Tug-of-war, and the Key Toss.

Despite the drinking age regulations, all Greeks and their dates had a fantastic day of fun, sun, and partying. At the conclusion of Greek Day, Sigma Nu took home the championship once again.

Greek Day provides a time for getting outside and enjoying a spring day on the ground or on wheels.

A day filled with friends, sunshine, and fun describes Dixie Day 1987. In the spring semester of each year, Clemson sororities participate in Dixie Day.

During the spring, sorority sisters compete in intramural activities including tennis, basketball, softball, backgammon, and spades. They gather points based on the final standing in each of the events.

Dixie Day is the culmination of a week filled with exciting events such as the Miss Magnolia Pageant and Sorority Sing. On Dixie Day sisters compete in crazy challenges which included an egg toss, tug-of-war, and a three-legged race.

Tamela McAtee was crowned Miss Magnolia 1987 and Alpha Delta Pi won Sorority Sing. The overall Dixie Day winner was Alpha Delta Pi.

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

"Together let us seek the heights" is Alpha Chi Omega's opening motto. In their 3rd year on Clemson's campus, the Theta Lambda chapter of Alpha Chi Omega was well on its way to acheiving those heights. They began the year with a terrific rush and 55 outstanding pledges. During the fall, Alpha Chi built a float for the 1st Friday Parade and Kelly Cockfield won the first Miss 1st Friday contest. Alpha Chi had its 2nd annual Captive Cruise — a riverboat party and cruise on the lake at Stone Mountain, Georgia. Alpha Chi was proud to place 3rd in Sigma Chi's Derby Days while raising money for Helping Hands, a local charity.

Helping others was an important part of being an Alpha Chi. We often participated in service projects, such as having a Games Day and Cookout for the Tomassee Boys Home with Alpha Phi Omega. In the spring they had a Frisbee Golf Tournament. It was an exciting and fun way to raise money for Alpha Chi's major philanthropy — the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. Other spring events included the Red Carnation Ball and Dixie Days.

ALPHA DELTA PI

The Zeta Nu chapter of Alpha Delta Pi began another year with excitement. They raised money for the Ronald McDonald House by holding their annual Teeter Totter-Marathon. Working with the community was important to these young ladies. They shared both their time and love by visiting with senior citizens and working with Meals on Wheels.

Maintaining a high chapter GPR was also important to the sorority. Several sisters were members of both Mortar Board and honorary fraternities.

Even though academics were stressed, ADPis knew how to have fun. Derby Days was a fun filled day as always. The school year was highlighted with mixers, other parties and a formal.

ALPHA GAMMA RHO

Alpha Gamma Rho was a national social-professional fraternity for men studying in the Colleges of Agriculture, Forestry, Biological and Natural Sciences. AGR participated in both campus and IFC activities. AGR's were involved in many campus organizations as well as held leadership postitions in professional clubs.

AGR's social calender was as colorful and unique as its strong brotherhood. There were informal parties, cookouts, and mixers with campus sororities and with the Rho-mates, their little sister organization. The spring was highlighted with the Pink Rose formal, ski retreats, a cookout for the College of Agriculture, Valentine Dance, and Greek Week competition.

Striving for academic achievement, AGR regularly achieved the highest grade point ratio among the fraternities on campus. AGR was also the only fraternity with all brothers living in one house. The brothers of Alpha Gamma Rho took pride in the association with Clemson University and the Greek system.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA

Alpha Phi Omega National Service Fraternity was founded on December 16, 1925, at Lafayette College in Easton, Pennsylvania. The 83rd chapter, Gamma Lambda, was chartered at Clemson on October 6, 1940. Gamma Lambda is the oldest APO chapter in South Carolina and one of the oldest fraternities at Clemson.

The aim of Alpha Phi Omega was to develop leadership, promote friendship, and provide service to others. As the collegiate extention of Scouting (although membership was not limited to Scouts), the fraternity advanced the ideals and principles expressed in the Scout Oath and Law, which provide a social, ethical and intellectual framework for living a meaningful and well-rounded life. Clemson APO's developed leadership by serving in chapter offices, planning and producing service projects and social events, participating in campus activities, and attending state, regional and national conferences, workshops and conventions. In 1987-88, members attended a regional conference in Orlando, Florida, and a state conference in Charleston. A highlight of each year was the chapter's Spring Retreat, a relaxed weekend away from campus during which all members have the opportunity to participate in discussing fraternity issues, evaluating projects and programs, and developing new plans and goals.

Promoting friendship was a natural result of working together in service to others, but for Clemson APO's that's only a beginning. The fraternity strengthened its bonds of brotherhood by sponsoring a wide variety of social events throughout each year — from cookouts and card-playing tournaments to theme parties and mixers with sororities. Brothers participated together in intramural sports and numerous other informal activities, and a formal awards banquet followed by a dance, caps each semester.

The supreme purpose of Alpha Phi Omega was service, and the chapter at Clemson excelled in fulfilling this charge. Not a week passed during the school year without some sort of APO service project being planned or performed.

Some projects were major productions that required months of work. An example was the annual Diaper Relay for the American Arthritis Foundation. Students dressed in diapers and bibs sponsored by area businesses ran a 50-mile route to Anderson to raise money for the fight against arthritis. Sisters of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority joined the APO's for the 1987-88 Diaper Relay, which raised more than $2,000.

Other projects, such as giving time and attention to a sick or neglected child or to the elderly residents of a nursing home, were less elaborate but no less significant. They were, in fact, among Alpha Phi Omega's most important service activities.

The brothers of Alpha Phi Omega gave generously of their time, talents and resources to make life a little better for someone else — and, in the process, they learned a lot about living and they had a lot of fun. That's a powerful combination of benefits for the individual members and a powerful statement about the high quality of the students at Clemson University.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA

The Eta Pi Chapter of Alpha Tau Omega was once again very involved in many activities on campus. The Alpha Tau Omega Tiger Paw calendar, featuring 12 beautiful Clemson coeds, was very popular again. The ATOs also kept busy by placing 2nd overall in Homecoming floats. The brothers continued to be very involved with many service projects to help less fortunate people.

The school year was highlighted by parties on football weekends, mixers, pre-game cookouts, Rush Week and Greek Week. The ATO's beautiful Little Sisters supported them throughout the year and were always around to help out. The brothers ended the year with their annual Founder's Day Formal and a trip to Myrtle Beach to celebrate the school year's end.

BETA THETA PI

The Delta Nu chapter of Beta Theta Pi enjoyed another year of academic, social, and athletic success. Due to the eight home football games, the Beta's were kept busy in the fall with pre-game activities, band parties, and much late night partying with 12:07's. Also Fall Rush succeeded in bringing in one of the largest pledge classes in recent memory and Homecoming culminated in a Beta-ATO band blast at the Armory. Other social events included the annual Founder's Day Dinner and fun times were had by all at various mixers.

Spring semester saw the Beta's once again emerge as a dominant force in intramural basketball, soccer, and softball. We also enjoyed putting on Dixie Day, Sorority Sing, and the Miss Magnolia Pageant. Spring Rush was also successful with the combination of mixers and band parties.

CHI OMEGA

Chi Omega has been an integral part of the Clemson system since March 1970. Nationwide, Chi Omega is the largest sorority with 177 active chapters.

Psi Kappa chapter of Chi Omega prided itself in the diversity of its members whose activities included all aspects of collegiate life — honor and professional organizations, student government, SAC, Central Spirit, fraternity little sisters and sweethearts.

The members of Chi Omega were also involved in community service. They assisted with many March of Dimes functions, a Tub-a-Thon for muscular dystrophy with the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity and held an Easter Egg hunt for the children of the Helping Hands of Clemson.

Chi Omegas were proud of their achievements during the year. Chi Omega was represented in Homecoming Court and won first place overall in Derby Day.

CHI PSI

Chi Psi was founded May 20, 1841, and brought to Clemson in 1971. It was the first fraternity to emphasize the fraternal and social principals of brotherhood.

The Chi Delta chapter at Clemson was active in the Fall semester with several mixers, pre-game alumni cookouts, theme parties, and Rush Week. We were also proud of the fact that we have placed first in the still competition in six of the last seven Homecomings, including this past Fall. Chi Delta also held various fundraising projects for Cystic Fibrosis.

The Brothers of Chi Psi began the Spring semester with the traditional Founder's Day Ball. Also on the social calendar was a Valentine's Day party, several mixers, our annual Formal in Myrtle Beach, and of course Greek Week. A cruise to Mexico during Spring Break and the big Senior Send-Off brought the school year to a roaring end. Brothers were represented in Tiger Band, Student Government, varsity sports, and various honor fraternities.

DELTA DELTA DELTA

The Beta Theta chapter of Delta Delta Delta has been on the Clemson campus since 1970. Tri-Delta had a successful rush this year with 55 pledges.

In the Spring, Tri-Delta awarded two academic scholarships to outstanding women. Money for the scholarships was raised by the annual Tri-Delta Halloween Party.

Throughout the year, Tri-Delts participated in First Friday Parade, Derby Day, the Pledge Formal, and Dixie Day. Two Tri-Delta sisters were crowned Clemson beauties. Lark Sisson was Miss Homecoming 1987, and Tamela McAtee was Miss Magnolia 1987.

DELTA GAMMA

Delta Gamma has been an important part of Clemson life since March, 1981. Nationally, Delta Gamma was recognized as a leader among women's organizations.

Delta Gamma proudly acknowledge the diversity of its members whose activites involved all aspects of college life. DG's could be found in honorary fraternities, professional organization, Student Government, Tiger Band, and many others.

Delta Gammas believed that service was a top priority. They operated vision screening booths and held several fund raisers in aid of the blind. In the Spring, DG's sponsored the sixth annual Anchor Splash.

Delta Gamma won first place overall in First Friday Parade, and participated in Dixie Day and Derby Days. Delta Gamma gained honors in intramural athletics, and boasted a busy social calender.

The sisters of Delta Gamma were proud of their achievements throughtout the year. Showing a spirit of excellence through goals and ideals, the diversity of members, and involvement, Delta Gamma eagerly awaited the future.

KAPPA ALPHA ORDER

The Kappa Alpha Order involved itself in a wide variety of activities this year. Highlights included Fall and Spring Rush, Homecoming, and various fund raisers for their philanthropy, the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Socially, the year was a busy one. Band parties followed each home football game during the fall. Other events included the traditional Mountain Weekend House Party in the changing leaves of North Carolina.

Old South, Kappa Alpha's toast to southern heritage, welcomed the brothers of Delta Omicron chapter, and chapters across the state back to school after the Christmas holidays. The remainder of the spring semester included mixers, a state wide Bike-a-Thon with other KA chapters, The Carolina Cup in Camden, SC and the annual Bahamas Party.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

The Delta Phi Chapter of Kappa Alpha Theta began its 15th year on campus. With the help of 55 pledges, the Thetas captured the Overall Greek Winner trophy for their float in the First Friday Parade. The Thetas joined the APOs in the Diaper Relay to aid the Arthritis Foundation and the Theta's national philanthropy, the Institute of Logopedics.

Homecoming weekend was busy as the sisters participated in Tigerama as well as hosted a drop-in for all alumni and actives. The semester was filled with service projects, scholastic achievements, and social functions. They held a Halloween and Christmas party for the Child Development Center. Also, many Thetas were tapped for membership into national honoraries. There was still time for spontaneous parties, Derby Day, and the crush party, "Unlucky in Love", which was held Friday the 13th.

The spring semester found the Thetas without a sorority floor due to the temporary closing of Barnett Hall. The Winter Formal, CDC Easter Party, and the Spring Party highlighted the semester.

KAPPA DELTA

Kappa Delta was founded in 1897, and Epsilon Tau chapter has been on campus since 1980. Kappa Delta has brought a tradition of excellence to the campus. Our most recent achievement has been to be first scholastically among Greek women for two semesters.

We also enjoyed a wide range of philanthropy projects. Sisters and pledges dressed up as characters during a Halloween Carnival for deaf children. KD enjoyed its 2nd annual Mr. Greek Pageant this year. During the pageant, frat guys had a blast vying for the title. Money raised was donated to the National Committee for the Prevention of Child Abuse. We had a Shamrock every March to benefit the Shriner's Hospital. We began the semester in the First Friday Parade. Next, we were active in Derby Days and in the spring, KD's were always ready for Dixie Day. We had a Fall and Christmas party during the semester. Our White Rose Formal was early in the year, and later we Go Hawaiian with a luau. The year ended with a trip to the beach.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA

The Epsilon Mu chapter of Kappa Kappa Gamma has participated in many activities this year. First Friday Parade was the first event of the year, and the Kappas displayed their float titled "A Catastrophic Crush." Next, the Kappas skit, "The Smurfs" was one of six chosen to participate in Tigerama. Derby Day was extra exciting because Kappa's representative Ashley McTeer won Derby Day Queen.

Again Kappas were very proud of their top philanthropy project, the Kappa Calendar, featuring Clemson's most gorgeous guys. The proceeds from the sales of the calendar were donated to the Multiple Sclerosis Foundation.

Kappa's social events included the annual Kappa Kidnap in November, the winter formal in January, and the New Year's Eve Party in March.

Kappa was also well represented in many campus organizations and events including Central Spirit, Student Government, cheerleading, beauty pageants, and various honor societies.

KAPPA SIGMA

Kappa Sigma's social calendar was as varied and colorful as its members. Fall semester parties centered around Rush and home football games with Homecoming week being the most exciting. In addition to those special events, several mixers, cookouts, and informal gatherings with the fraternity's Little Sisters and campus sororities were enjoyed by everyone. The traditional "Sweetheart Ball" formal and fraternity resort house weekend provided many memorable moments during the cold winter months of the second semester. The coming of spring time brought lots of warmth, but also the excitement and spirited competition of Greek Week and the Greek Day games. As always, throughout the year, the Kappa Sigma biannual Buckwheat functions resulted in unique social events.

PI KAPPA ALPHA

The brothers of Eta Alpha Chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity continued to strive for success during the 1987-88 academic year. Following the most successful rush ever at Clemson, the brothers sponsored the Thirteenth Annual First Friday Parade. A new aspect was added to the parade this year. Miss Kelly Cockfield of Alpha Chi Omega was named the first Miss First Friday, a competition which raised money for Helping Hands.

During the fall semester, the Pikes worked hard on their Homecoming display "Oasis of the ACC" and captured first place with their Tigerama skit "Bragnet". The brothers also competed on the athletic field, in the classroom, in Greek Week sports, and Greek Sing. The social calendar was marked by afternoon and evening mixers, alumni drop-ins, pre- and post-game parties, as well as the Bahamas or Bust party.

The Zeta Apha Associate chapter of Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity worked toward meeting its goals for the 1987-88 school year. The brothers participated in the first Clemson initiation on April 3, 1987. Pi Kappa Phi Mational Fraternity awarded the brothers with the Added Value Award for having one of the largest alumni initiations in one semester.

As a fraternity, Pi Kappa Phi had three major functions: scholarship, social, and philanthropic. The brothers were able to maintain a cumulative grade point average higher than all men's cumulative GPA. Simultaneously, this was the first year that Pi Kappa Phi fielded two undefeated intramural teams and continued to excel in the other intramural sports. Pi Kappa Phi also expanded its Rush Girl organization which produced a Homecoming Queen candidate and Pi Kappa Phi held several mixers.

Pi Kappa Phi's philanthropic project, PUSH, was quite successful. The brothers were able to raise hundreds of dollars for the handicapped.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

The brothers of Sigma Alpha Epsilon entered their 18th year on the campus of Clemson University with a busy schedule. Pre-game cookouts, band parties, sorority mixers, a party with the Maryland SAEs, and the annual Chi O-SAE Tub-a-Thon for Muscular Dystrophy highlighted the fall semester. The brothers also built the float for the Homecoming Queen and her court. Two of the ten finalists in the Homecoming pageant were little sisters.

The spring semester was busy with more sorority mixers, a fantastic rush, a trip to Florida for spring break, the annual "House Party" ski trip to the mountains, and their traditional spring formal which was held at the Clemson House.

SIGMA CHI

The 1987-88 academic year was the 10th anniversary of the Eta Psi chapter of Sigma Chi. Since our establishment on Clemson's campus on May 7, 1977, the chapter has steadily grown. In 1986-87, we won Anchor Splash for the second year, as well as Greek Day sports. We placed 4th in Homecoming displays and had the 2nd highest GPR of all fraternities on campus.

In 1987-88, we placed 4th in Homecoming displays again. Fall semester saw the biggest Rush we have had. We inducted 27 fine men as pledges and 18 little sister pledges. Derby Day was the Greek World's largest fundraiser. The 1986 Derby Day raised $5,000 for Greenville's Shriner's Hospital. The 1987 Derby Day raised $10,000. for Helping Hands of Clemson.

Other activities included Faculty Appreciation Hours, and annual Morrison Elementary help on Homecoming display. Brothers were involved in Central Spirit, Student Government, Interfraternity Council, TAPS, honor and professional societies, Bowling and Ski teams, and all intramural sports.

SIGMA NU

The brothers of Theta Zeta chapter of Sigma Nu Fraternity kicked off the fall semester by winning the Overall Homecoming Award with a 1st place finish in the moving display competition and a 2nd place finish in Tigerama. Sigma Nu also worked hard in the local community pursuing various philanthropy projects. The brothers collected money for MD, ran a Halloween Carnival for local elementary school children, and made daily visits to Clemson Downs, a local retirement community. This was topped off with Theta Zeta's Game Ball Run in which the brothers ran the game ball for the Clemson — USC football game to Columbia. The money raised from the Run went to fight Lou Gehrig's Disease.

The fall social calendar included mixers, pre-game cookouts, and post-game parties. The year was highlighted with the Spring Formal in Waynesville, N.C., and the infamous end of the year Myrtle Beach blowout known as Gatorball. Sigma Nu also fielded highly competitive teams in both Intramural and Interfraternity competition.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON

The South Carolina Beta chapter of Sigma Phi Epsilon started its 17th year at Clemson with over one hundred brothers enabling them to be a strong force in intramural and interfraternity competition.

During the school year, the brothers stayed active with band parties, sorortiy mixers, Attitude Adjustment Socials, and the annual Sweetheart Formal. The brothers also enjoyed weekend outing in their fraternity vehicle the OR-BEAST. The year culminated with a beach trip after exams.

In the Summer, the brothers came back to Clemson to paint the giant tiger paws that line the roads coming into campus.

INTER-FRATER-NITY COUNCIL

The Interfraternity Council governed its fifteen member fraternities through another successful year. The IFC strived to develop and maintain a supportive and responsible Greek system, linking the fraternities with University administration, the Panhellenic Council, and the Pangreek Council.

The IFC, composed of two elected members from each chapter, began the year by putting together a quality fall rush program. It put together programs for post-football game parties. In maintaining a positive influence on the entire University program, the IFC completed another successful rush in the spring, culminating the year with a hand in the new Greek Week activities.

The IFC actively seeks participation from its members and fraternity members. With this participation and effective governing, the IFC hopes to enrich the lives of each of its chapters' members.

PAN-HELLENIC COUNCIL

The Panhellenic Council was the common link between the nine women's sororities on campus and was comprised of the president and two delegates from each group. The largest undertaking of the Panhellenic Council was sorority rush held each fall. Throughout the year, Panhellenic was also very active in providing scholastic recognition, social functions, and service projects for Greeks. This past year, Panhellenic worked especially hard on an Early Rush Proposal, a Panhellenic Dorm Proposal, and a Panhellenic newsletter.

The Junior Panhellenic Council, comprised of the President and two delegates from each sorority's pledge class, introduced Panhellenic spirit to the new Greek members. A Panhellenic Pledging ceremony was given for the pledge classes as well as a dinner so that pledges from different sororities could meet each other. Panhellenic spirit kept Greek women working together to be the best that they could be.

DELTA SIGMA THETA

Delta Sigma Theta Sorority originally listed her purpose as being "to establish and maintain a high standard of morality and scholarship among women." She has maintained that ideal and gone on to seek other goals for the black community as well as society in general. Delta's major program activity took place at the chapter level where local chapters used their membership, training, and resources to meet community needs.

The history of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority is a tribute to the spirit and imagination of the 22 women who founded it on Jan. 13, 1913 at Howard University. The ideas, evolution, contributions of Delta are portrayed and understood in the context of the events which fostered the Sorority's existence.

The Sorority's development during seven decades revealed the focus on the changing needs of society and the recognition of these needs by the organization. Sustained by the bond of sisterhood, the challenges and successes of 73 years inspired members today and assured us that our organization will endure.

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA

Gamma Sigma Sigma, a national womens' service sorority, was very active on Clemson's campus. The organization was founded nationally in 1952 and was established at this university in 1969. The sorority's ideals are friendship, service, and equality. All college women are eligible for membership. In the Fall, the sorority sponsored a Rock-a-Thon for the American Cancer Society, and in the Spring, the members participated in a Walk-a-Thon for the March of Dimes. Other activities included visiting the Shriner's Hospital and Collins Children's Home, and babysitting for the university secretaries.

KAPPA ALPHA PSI

The undergraduate and alumni chapter of Kappa Alpha Psi was the realization of a dream shared by ten astute brothers. The founding of Kappa Alpha Psi took place on Jan. 5, 1911, on the campus of Indiana University of Bloomington, Indiana. Kappa Alpha Psi continued to grow and prosper under the leadership of brothers on the graduate and undergraduate level. Kappa Alpha Psi was about achievement. Achieving your goals, dreams, and ambitions, this was what our fraternity was about.

The Kappa Lambda chapter of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, Inc. was founded on October 16, 1980 by seven men who sought a bond of brotherhood here at Clemson and nationally. The charter line name was "Clemson Crimson Seven." Since the founding of the Kappa Lamda chapter, sixty outstanding men have joined the Kappa Alpha Psi bond. The chapter was constantly seeking to achieve and excel in every field of human endeavor as they assisted in making life better for mankind.

GAMMA PHI BETA

Clemson University's Greek system welcomed a new member into its organization in January. Gamma Phi Beta Sorority was colonized on campus with the help of University of Georgia Gamma Phis and other area alums by holding an open rush January 19-22 and a formal pledging ceremony to present the Gamma Phi pledges to the university on January 24. The need for a new sorority at Clemson became evident when over 600 girls went throught Fall 1987 rush. This tremendous participation in rush pushed many sorority's pledge classes to 55 girls. The presence of another sorority during formal rush will allow even more girls to participate in the Greek life at Clemson University.

Gamma Phi Beta has an interesting history and a great deal to offer both the Greek system and its members. Founded on November 11, 1974 at Syracuse University, Syracuse, New York, by Frances E. Haven, the sorority's ideals of developing the highest type of womanhood have been the essence of its continued existence. Gamma Phi's official colors are light brown and dark brown, and their unofficial colors are red, yellow, blue, and green.

Donna Andrews

Sit down, sit down, we're trying to start a sorority.

Their symbol is the crescent moon and the pink carnation is their flower. The Crescent is their magazine, which has been published continuously since 1900, fosters the idea of strengthened sisterhood through communication. Gamma Phis are also proud of being one of the original seven sororities that founded the National Panhellenic Conference.

As with all Greeks, service is an important part of a Gamma Phi Beta chapter's success. Service to others allows for the utility of each individual's time and talent. The international philanthropy for Gamma Phis is known as Camping for Special Girls. Girls who are financially deprived, physically impaired, medically disabled, emotionally disturbed, or abused are offered a special experience at these camps which are operated and funded entirely by Gamma Phis and contributions to the Gamma Phi Beta Foundation.

Clemson's chapter, Epsilon Theta, after receiving over 90 new pledges, began residing on the 8th floor of Manning Hall. The pledges were excited about becoming involved in the Greek life at Clemson and expected to be participating in the many activities of the Spring semester. Because of the large number of girls who have become pledges, it is possible that Gamma Phis will be able to participate in Fall rush 1988.

A GREEK'S GALLERY OF NECESSITIES

Few groups on Clemson's campus are as proud to show off their affiliation as the Greeks. It is hard to find a place around Clemson University where there is not someone displaying their Greek loyalty and spirit. Greek paraphernalia has become a big business in the small town of Clemson and is expected to grow along with the university and the Greek system.

Several stores in downtown Clemson as well as the Clemson University Book Store carry a wide selection of Greek clothing and other items personalized for all the different fraternities and sororities. A sampling of items that can be purchased range from shirts of all styles to cups of all sizes; from notebooks, pads, stationery, and pens to stuffed animals; and from buttons and bumper stickers to lavaliers and pins. Most of these items are absolute necessities to the true Greek. Upon seeing a new shirt, for example, the usual reaction is "I must have that shirt" (to go along with the other 24 just like it). But that is just part of being a Greek.

CAREER GUIDE

MAKE A COMMITMENT

The Soil Conservation Service began its conservation work during the Dust Bowl days of the 1930's. Ever since that disaster, we have been working to convince people to conserve our Nation's resources and helping them to achieve this goal.

SCS offers a variety of career opportunities, whether you are still in college or have already graduated. Each career is unique, but they hall have one thing in common: a commitment to preserving our Nation's soil and water for future generations.

To find out more about careers in SCS, contact your nearest Soil Conservation Service Office. It's listed in the telephone directory under U.S. Government, Department of Agriculture, Soil Conservation Service.

- State Board Review Offered June and December

CONTACT: Nurse Recruiter 255-1855

MUSC IS ON THE PROWL FOR NURSES WHO ARE TIGERS.

And the only thing you can do is to hold on tight for the nursing opportunity of your life. Because once you see the color of our stripes, you'll be caught up in the action at one of the most exciting teaching, referral hospitals in the Southeast, the Medical University of South Carolina.

Here's everything you've prepared for as a Clemson graduate. And more. Like 12 new O.R.s, 8 new ICUs, a new life-line helicopter, a new 8-story children's hospital and all the support you need to help you hang in when the fur starts to fly.

And when it's time to let go, there's no better place to relax than in the shade of some Low Country live oaks, or on the sunny beaches of Charleston, SC.

See what a nursing career at MUSC can do for you. Contact our Nurse Recruiter by writing: Medical University of South Carolina, 171 Ashley Avenue, Charleston, SC 29425-0600. Or by calling (803) 792-3865, collect. M/F/H, EOE.

Duke's Tops Everything. But Nothing Tops Duke's.

It's the premium mayonnaise made with all natural ingredients. And without sugar or artificial preservatives.

That's why Duke's is on top for flavor.

Our Horizons Are Limitless...

Because the world is our marketplace. Our Fortune 200 company is the leading producer of electrical and electronic connectors, switches, and related devices. We market these products to more than 25,000 OEMs worldwide.

We're successful because we constantly seek forward thinkers with the creativity, ability and ambition to be challenged by a career promising diverse projects and multiple locations. And our company:

- Commits more than 9% of yearly sales to R & D.
- Has manufacturing facilities in Virginia, the Carolinas, Florida and Arizona.
- Has committed considerable assets to making its facilities the most modern in the U.S. (CAD & CAE)
- Has grown at more than 10% annually for the past 10 years.

We have openings for Clemson graduates with backgrounds in Engineering, Physics, Metallurgy, Polymer/Plastics Chemistry, Computer Science and other technical disciplines.

Let your hard work pay off. We've built AMP by helping build careers...join us. Send a resume, transcript and letter of application, or call: Employment Manager, AMP INCORPORATED, P.O. Box 3608, Harrisburg, PA 17105. (717) 780-6279 (Collect). An Equal Opportunity Employer M/F.

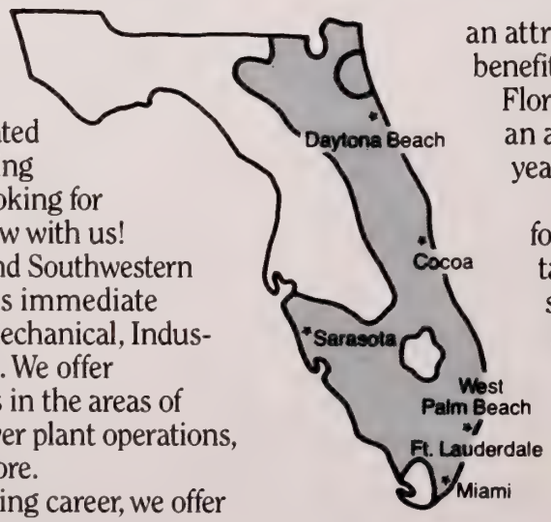
Hermanos, Los — where we met to come up

Looking for a good company to grow with?

Florida Power & Light is the nation's fifth largest investor-owned electric utility located in one of the fastest growing service areas and we're looking for qualified engineers to grow with us!

Serving the Eastern and Southwestern coasts of Florida, FPL has immediate openings for Electrical, Mechanical, Industrial and Civil Engineers. We offer challenging opportunities in the areas of planning and design, power plant operations, customer contact, and more.

In addition to an exciting career, we offer an attractive salary with excellent benefits.



Florida's tropical climate encourages an active outdoor way of life all year-round.

So, if you're an Engineer looking for a good company to grow with, talk to us first. Qualified candidates should submit resume including salary history to:
College & Professional Recruiting,
Florida Power & Light Company,
P.O. Box 029100, Miami, FL 33102.

CHOOSE CAREFULLY

At the new AT&T, we think you should know that there's a difference between AT&T and some of these new telecommunications companies that just fell off the tree. After all, when you're the company that planted the seeds of the information age, you just naturally set a standard that's a cut above the rest.

We're the people who brought the world the telephone, the transistor, the solar cell, the laser, sound motion pictures, high fidelity recording and much more. And today, we're leading the way in new technologies such as microelectronics, photonics, software and digital systems.

Our streamlined new company is full of high-tech opportunities just right for the picking. Meeting the research challenges of our world-famous AT&T Bell Laboratories. Developing computer and telecommunications products. Pioneering long distance voice and data services. Providing state-of-the-art network systems for the industry.

We've always been able to deliver high quality products and services because we've always attracted people of high quality.

Whether it's telephones, information or network systems, long distance services or computers, AT&T is the right choice.

AT&T

An Equal Opportunity Employer.

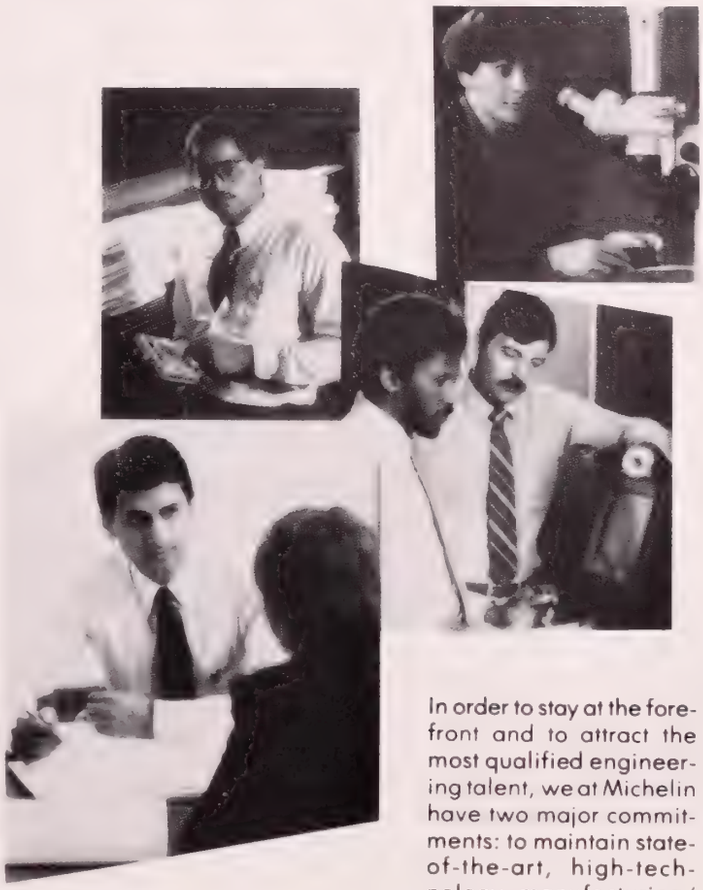
High Technology Begins Here . . .
With Our People !



In order to stay at the forefront and to attract the most qualified engineering talent, we at Michelin have two major commitments: to maintain state-of-the-art, high-technology manufacturing/research and development facilities, and to maintain the kind of atmosphere for our people that promotes teamwork, yet encourages independent thinking. Here, you'll find yourself involved on exciting projects, working side-by-side with some of the industry's most respected professionals. Yet, you will quickly realize that your ideas count at Michelin and that you can impact the goals that are so important to our continued success.

We're pioneering technologies that will redefine performance standards of radial tires. At Michelin, we strive to give the industry what it has come to expect from us—leadership, innovation, and product excellence.

With that as our challenge, we seek the kind of engineering talent that can make a difference. If you seek an environment that inspires your professional best; that depends on results; that promotes teamwork, yet recognizes individual contribution, your career should be with Michelin.

If you are an engineer who would like to be associated with a progressive company committed to excellence, send your resume or call: Michelin Tire Corporation, Corporate Recruiting, P.O. Box 2846, Station CA, Greenville, SC 29602, (803) 277-9300. An Equal Opportunity Employer.

Engelhard. We're good company.

All across the U.S. and in 19 countries, we're known for the kinds of exceptional people who've established us as one of the world's leading producers of exceptional technologies.

We make the technologies that help heat our homes, fly our airplanes, explore space, keep our air and water clean, brighten the paints and papers we use, power our cars, keep our stereos, computers, and telephones working, and more.

Yet without our exceptional people, there would be no exceptional technologies. Which is why we work especially hard to offer our 7100 employees a host of exceptional challenges, opportunities, and benefits. All within a corporate environment that actively encourages personal and professional growth and achievement.

Engelhard. No matter where you find us, you'll find we're exceptional company.

For a copy of our new brochure entitled "Exceptional Technologies," write to: Engelhard Corporation, 70 Wood Avenue South, CN 770, Iselin, NJ 08830, Attn: Corporate Communications.

Hoechst High Chem. A part of your life. Every day.

Hoechst High Chem, a unique blending of chemistry, engineering, physics, medicine and biology sets the stage for new product achievements that contribute to the quality of your life. At the Hoechst Celanese Spartanburg plant our employees—2,000 strong—are committed to making those products work for you.

In carpets of Trevira,* America's best selling carpet polyester. In stylish clothing with colors and patterns that look more brilliant because they're made with our whitest-white polyester Trevira 221. In children's sleepwear with the safety of Trevira for FR,* America's only polyester fiber for inherent flame-resistant fabrics.

All across America, Hoechst High Chem is the driving force behind other equally impressive accomplishments in communications, food and agriculture, health care, plastics and textiles. Solutions that make life easier and more enjoyable.

THE RIGHT STUFF NEEDS THE RIGHT PEOPLE

ELECTRONIC ENGINEERS COMPUTER SCIENTISTS
AEROSPACE ENGINEERS MECHANICAL ENGINEERS MATHEMATICIANS

AT THE NAVAL AIR TEST CENTER, the pursuit of airborne excellence depends on people like you — talented engineers and scientists whose business is technology. Our job is to test and refine the most advanced aircraft and aircraft systems in the world. And that means our work begins with the very latest developments in electronics and computer science, as well as aerospace and mechanical engineering. Microprocessor systems, computer-aided design, digital flight control, communications, microwave networks, simulation technology — these are just a few of the fields in which we excel.

WHEN YOU LAUNCH YOUR CAREER at the Naval Air Test Center, you soon find that the opportunities for hands-on involvement with a wide range of projects are limitless. You can be an expert specialist or a versatile troubleshooter — or, more likely, both. You work with the newest concepts and most sophisticated equipment in your field. And you enjoy the satisfaction of following every project from start to finish, from theory in the lab to deployment in the sky.

THE TEST CENTER HAS THE BEST IN BENEFITS, TOO. We offer you the opportunity to pursue graduate education at our expense. We allow you to advance rapidly in both position and salary. And our location in the heart of Chesapeake Bay Country promises a lifestyle that many of your peers will envy.

A WHOLLY OWNED SUBSIDIARY OF CURTISS WRIGHT

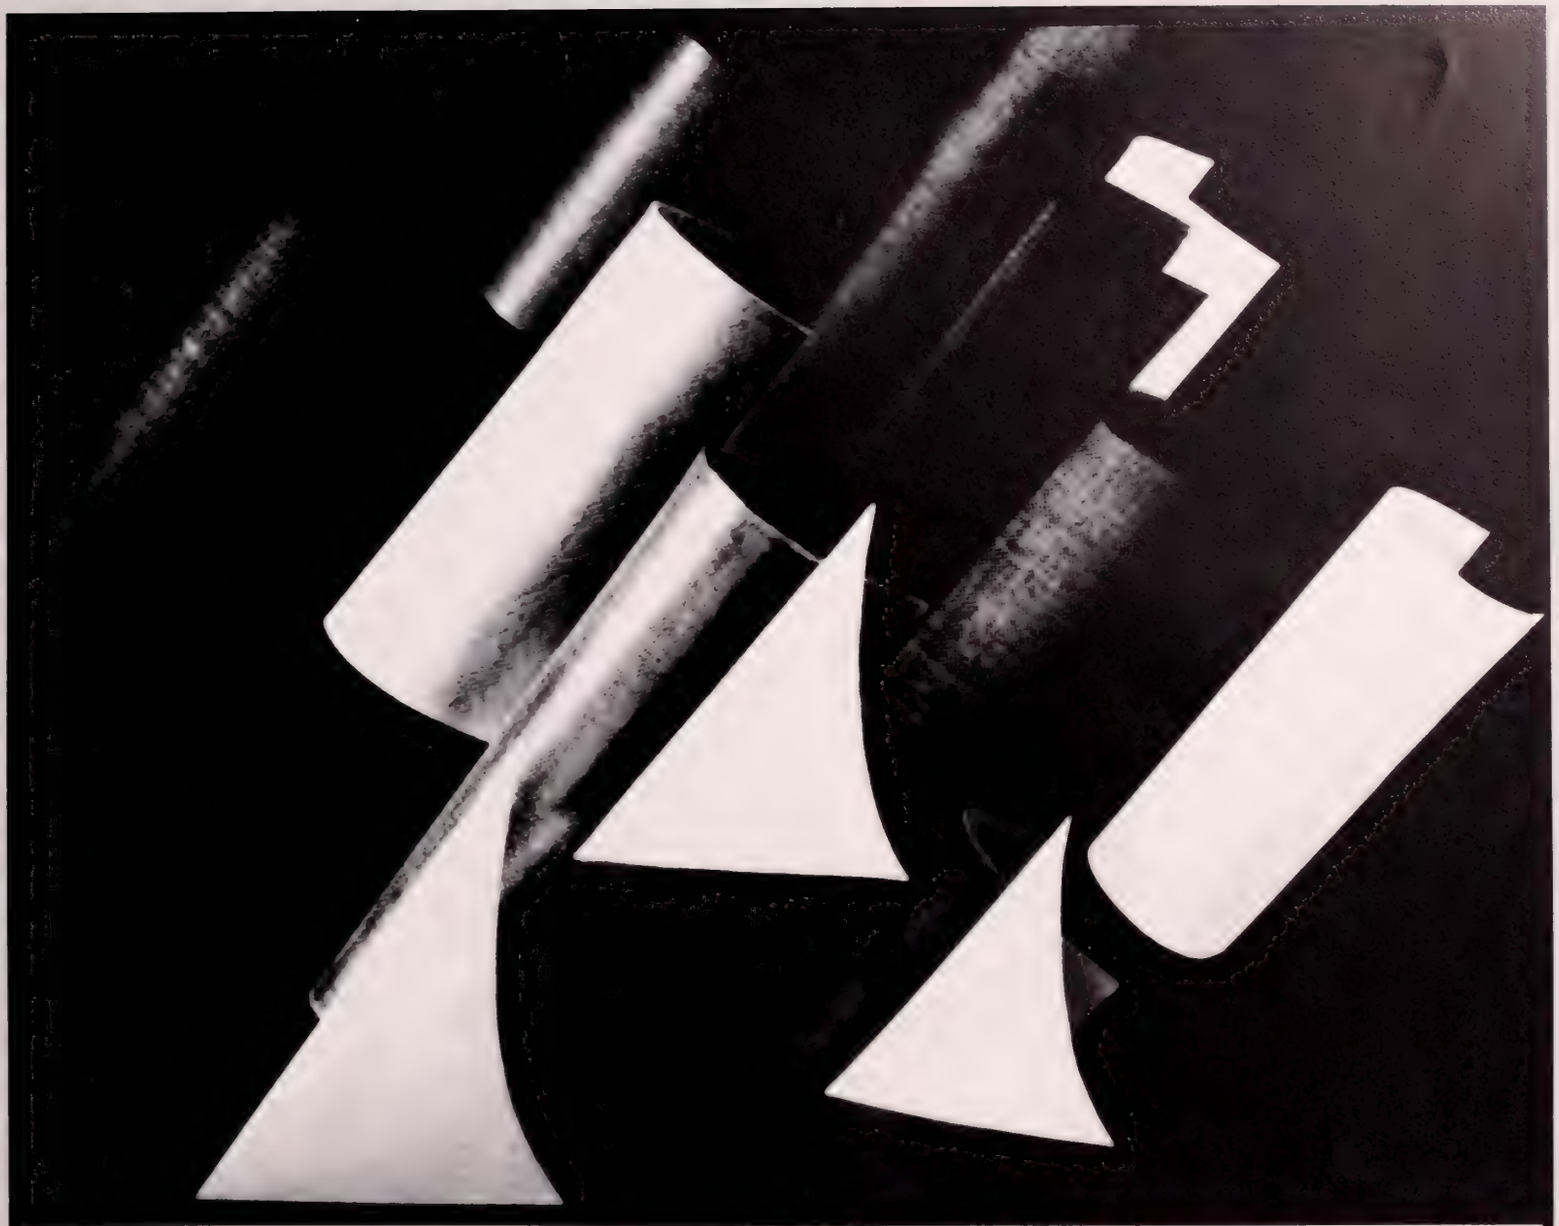
. . . Innovation in flight control since 1903

Curtiss-Wright Corporation derives its origins from its famous namesakes, Orville and Wilbur Wright and Glenn H. Curtiss, inventors and pioneers who dominated early aviation in the United States with aircraft and engines. The companies started by these pioneers, although then competitors and rivals, eventually merged in 1929 to form the Curtiss-Wright Corporation of today.

Curtiss-Wright Flight Systems, Inc., originally the Curtiss Propeller Division, was established in its present location in Fairfield, New Jersey in 1940 and continued its propeller business until the advent of the turbojet engine when the demand for porpellers declined.

Curtiss-Wright Flight Systems, Inc. today is working in the most advanced areas of primary flight control looking toward a future as illustrious as its past.

Curtiss-Wright Flight Systems, Inc. is proud of its contribution to the historic first flight of Space Shuttle Columbia.



NAVIGATING THE FUTURE WITH FABRICS AND FIBERS.

With unfailing direction and firm commitment, Amoco Fabrics and Fibers Company has become a leader in fiber research, producing a diverse line of fibers, yarn systems and fabrics used every day in the home and in industry.

Carpet fibers and backings
Amoco's continuous filament olefin yarn system, Marquesa® Lana, along with the nation's No. 1 backing systems, ActionBac® secondary and PolyBac® primary, are all used in the manufacturing of America's highest quality carpets.

Construction fabrics
Amoco's complete line of woven and non-woven polypropylene fabrics, used for paving, ground stabilization, erosion control and silt fence, meet or exceed all engineering requirements.

And more
Amoco also provides vital ingredients for end products like wallcoverings, upholstery fabrics, disposable nonwovens and luggage, just to name a few.

So, when you look to the future, look to the leader. Look to Amoco.

Colophon

The 1988 TAPS was printed by Jostens' Printing and Publishing Company, 1312 Dickson Highway, Clarksville, Tennessee, 37040. The press run was 6600, with a trim size of nine inches by twelve inches. It was Smyth Sewn in 16 page signatures for a total of 560 pages. The paper stock is Warren's Cameo Dull #80.

Body Copy is 10 point Century Schoolbook. Captions are 8 point Century Schoolbook Bold; by-lines are 10 point Century Scoolbook Bold; photo credits are 7 point Century Schoolbook.

TAD MaReB designed the original cover art which was slightly modified by Jostens artist Linda Farrell.

With the exceptions of the class portraits and a few others (appropriately credited), all photographs were taken by staff photographers or staff members posing as photographers. The black-and-white photos were selected from less than 25 frames of 135 and 120 mm Ilford Pan F, FP-4, and HP-5 films. All were processed by the photo staff with Ilford chemicals and printed on Ilford Ilfospeed glossy paper. Only 69 frames of color transparencies were taken by the staff with Ektachrome 64, 200 and 400 and Fujichrome something. All films were processed by the staff.

Class portraits were taken by Yearbook Associates, P.O. Box 91, Millers Falls, Massachusetts, 01349.

Advertising was done by Collegiate Concepts, Inc., 1700 Montreal Circle, Tucker, Georgia, 30084.

MADE IN THE USA

"It matters!"

Always look for a USA label when you shop for clothes and other textile products like sheets, towels, carpet and table linens because it matters in many ways to all of us. "Made in USA" textile products are your best shopping value.

The End Of A Year And The End Of An Era

As we approached the end of our yearbook and our first century, we wanted to look back on all that was new and exciting in Clemson's ninety-ninth year.

This year we got to see the NCAA championship won in the new soccer stadium by Coach Ibrahim's young team. A new computer center was opened to help us expand. Two colleges got new deans ready to lead their schools into the next century, and our thirteenth president, Max Lennon, began implementation of his Second Century Plan. We certainly ended our first century with more than a few new beginnings.

We left this year with great hope that our next century would be able to surpass our present one in honors and accomplishments. Not only were we approaching the end, we were approaching a new beginning.

Joel Lehrer

Michael J. Morga

Around campus, squirrels are as commonplace as students and professors.

In the last picture to make all Zoology majors famous, Ornithology students use questars and binoculars to look at bufflehead ducks, sanderlings and ring-billed gulls at Huntington Beach.

The huge storm which hit in early January blanketed the campus with about twelve inches of snow. Most areas were disrupted with footprints but some weren't.

Potential Clemson students (in about ten years) get a bird's eye view of the amphitheater and reflection pond.
